Enjoying Luminous

Thousands flocked to the Tondoon Botanic Gardens and Gladstone's CBD to view the impressive light displays for Luminous on July 16-17.

Gladstone Regional Councillor Rick Hansen said the family friendly event had something for everyone.

"The gardens were packed with massive light displays, illuminated art, live music, roving entertainment, workshops, children's activities and a spectacular water activation on Lake Tondoon," he said.

Standing proud

By Liam Emerton

A racial attack on a much-loved and heavily respected member of the Gladstone community has left the city in a state of disbelief.

A spectator at Dennis Park on Sunday evening verbally attacked Gladstone Wallaby Rugby League Club player Ashley Dodd with horrendous racial slurs.

Following the racist remarks Mr Dodd and his teammates made a stand, leaving the field in protest.

Mr Dodd's Facebook post about the incident received a considerable amount of empathy and support from friends, relatives and others.

Simply titled 'Say No to Racism', Mr Dodd condemned the actions and spoke about the pain of the words.

"I've never had such words yelled at me from a crowd," he wrote.

"I'm in disbelief and upset that it still happens at local venues.

"I don't mind getting out played and flogged by a footy team but racially abused is next level."

After looking back on the incident Mr Dodd spoke with Gladstone Today with a positive message, speaking about the community's response and how they have banded together to support their fellow local.

He simply asked for everyone to "Stand behind us."

In support of Mr Dodd and the walk off by the Wallaby Club, Tannum Sands Seagulls released a statement the next day.

Gladstone Today's newest journalist, Eilish Massie.

Welcome Eilish

By Eilish Massie

Hi there and thank you for supporting local journalism.

My name is Eilish Massie, I'm Gladstone's Today's newest journalist.

While I'm new to this gig, I'm no stranger to Gladstone.

I moved here at the end of 2019 for my first job in the industry at the Gladstone Observer after graduating from a Bachelor of Journalism at the Queensland University of Technology.

Covering local issues, council, politics and breaking news, I have learnt the ins and outs of the powerhouse that is our town.

Journalism is my passion and I love writing about the issues that impact the town and I'm excited to bring that coverage to Gladstone Today.

Feel free to get in touch with story ideas or tips as I would love to hear from you.

Here's to having a local paper again!

Discovering STEM with launch of program

By Eilish Massie

Gladstone's Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander school students explored the world of STEM with the launch of a new program at CQ University on Thursday June 15.

20 year three and four Gladstone West State School students participated in various activities at the launch of the 2021 Buraligim Weiber STEM program.

The program, developed by CQ University's STEM Central team and funded by Australia Pacific LNG, will allow students to improve their engagement, literacy and school attendance.

Students will learn about the environment, food and sustainability, flora and fauna and waterways all through the viewpoint of connection to Country.

CQ Uni STEM Central Lead Dr Linda Pfeiffer said the students would receive many hands-on experiences, including boat tours of Gladstone Harbour and Quoin Island, visits to the Botanic Gardens and Spinnaker Park and CQ Uni's Coastal Marine Ecosystems Research Centre (CMERC).

"The program has been prepared by a team of educators, academics and local community members and will be implemented by one of the school's teachers, Mirrin Rashleigh, in consultation with Traditional Custodians from the Gooreng Gooreng tribe," Ms Pfeiffer said.

Gladstone's Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander primary school students explored the world of STEM with the launch of a new program at CQUniversity on Thursday June 15.

The editor's desk

It's 2021 and The Black Lives Matter movement has been at the forefront of the public eye for over a year.

And yet there are still toxic people in our society who judge and attack people because of the colour of their skin.

Some people still think it's ok, or maybe think they can get away with it, but there needs to be a stand.

On Sunday afternoon the Gladstone Wallaby Football Club made a stand. During a game that has brought so much joy, on Sunday it brought pain.

I applaud Ashely Dodd and his team, who rose and called out the racist remarks viciously hurled towards him.

Mr Dodd was a little reluctant to speak to any media outlet at first but decided that he would speak up to help try and make a change.

But now it's up to our city to help rid that backwards culture and as Mr Dodd said we have to stand by him and all of those who are racially abused.

- Liam Emerton

Please stand with us now

By Liam Emerton

It's a simple message from a highly-respected member of our community - 'stand with us.'

After a racially charged verbal incident directed at Gladstone Wallaby Rugby League Club star Ashley Dodd, his team walked away from the field in a show of solidarity.

Now Mr Dodd wants everyone to do the same.

Mr Dodd spoke to Gladstone Today and asked for the community to come together and rid the region of racism, there simply is no place for it.

"I've had a lot of people reach out to me from past and present players and some I didn't even know," said Mr Dodd.

"It was so supportive and I'm really proud of that.

"I've had guys from other codes too, who are really good friends of mine, that have had old memories brought up from their own past experiences.

"I want people to stand with me against racism, I don't like it, nobody likes it but in this day and age this should not be happening to anyone and not just me.

"I know how it feels when those words are directed at me, it's hurtful. I'm a grown man and it took me nearly to tears."

Mr Dodd's emotional pleas comes off the incident where a spectator at Dennis Park verbally assaulted Mr Dodd with racist remarks.

His team's opposition on the day, the Tannum Sands Seagulls stood by the Wallaby club and Mr Dodd.

The Seagulls posted a statement to their Facebook page swiftly after the incident, condemning the actions of the spectator.

"We as a club are appalled at the racial abuse incident that occurred last night at Dennis Park and stand behind the Wallabies as part of the Gladstone Rugby League community.

"Our position is clear, racism and verbal abuse are not acceptable, and we will act swiftly and clearly to remove this from our grounds and our culture as demonstrated last night.

The Wallaby Rugby League Club together as one.

"We would like to confirm that the perpetrator responsible for the verbal abuse was removed form the vicinity immediately and has been banned from returning to the "Dennis Park fields for any and all future events. This perpetrator was and is in no way affiliated with our club.

"Our club maintain a policy of zero tolerance towards this kind of behavior.

"This policy extends not just to our coaches, players and volunteers but also to the spectators.

"Tannum Seagulls would like to extend our apologies to the Gladstone Rugby League community as a whole, but more importantly to the player who was directly targeted by this terrible incident.

"This sort of behavior is ugly, unnecessary and utterly unacceptable. We will work diligently to ensure this is a standalone incident and does not occur again." A spokesperson wrote in the statement.

The Wallaby's club has a long and strong multicultural history and will be back on the field this weekend.

CBAM not a threat to CQ's aluminium industry

By Duncan Evans

The European Union's (EU) imposition of a carbon-border adjustment mechanism (CBAM) is unlikely to have a negative effect on Central Queensland's aluminium industry, according to Australian Aluminium Council Executive Director Marghanita Johnson.

Ms Johnson told CQ Today that aluminium exports were presently geared towards Asian markets and the United States rather than Europe.

"Australia doesn't export very much aluminium at all to Europe," she said.

"In the last three years, it's been less than half a percent of our exports."

The CBAM puts a carbon price on imports from non-EU countries if those countries do not align with the EU's carbon pricing rules. The mechanism is designed to assist the EU meet its climate mitigation targets by encouraging producers in non-EU countries to "green" their production processes.

The following imports are marked for the CBAM:

- cement
- iron and steel
- aluminium

- fertilisers
- electricity

Boyne Smelters Limited, located near Gladstone, produced some 507 KT of aluminium in 2020, making it Australia's second largest aluminium smelter.

The company exports primarily to Asian markets, including Japan and South Korea. It also exports into the American market.

Queensland Alumina Limited (QAL), a producer of alumina, a key input into the aluminium production process, is also unlikely to be negatively affected in the short term.

"Only primary aluminium, only the smelting part, is included in this phase. It's not all the inputs. It's just the production of primary aluminium," Ms Johnson said.

However, though the near-term effect of the CBAM will likely be minimal, if the scheme were to be replicated across the world, Australia's aluminium producers could confront new challenges over the coming years.

"It would depend on the design of the scheme in the different jurisdictions," Ms Johnson said.

"What we need to look at is, how will this (the CBAM) affect the countries with whom we have the closest trading relationships?"

GPC lists Act For Kids as community beneficiaries in FunD Run Port to Park

Fun run for green thumbs

Locals will be lacing up their running shoes for a good cause on August 15, with Act for Kids announced as the first-ever community beneficiary for Gladstone Ports Corporation's (GPC) Port to Park fun run.

The community beneficiary funding worth $20,000, will go towards helping the Gladstone group with its local project, 'Safe Harbour Therapy Garden'.

The new project is being established at the Act for Kids' Gladstone's office located on Glenlyon Street where GPC's funding will contribute to creating the garden for a therapy space.

Chief Operating Officer, Craig Walker, said Act for Kids' program demonstrates a vital need and valuable program in the community.

"This funding will be put to good use to support our children in our region," Mr Walker said.

"We know, now more than ever, Act for Kids would really appreciate this funding after enduring one of their most challenging years' due to Covid-19," he said.

"The community beneficiary is quite special this year because it will be the first to kick-off the new-look fun run."

A recent report released by the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare revealed one in every 31 children receive child protection services.

Act for Kids Chief Executive Officer, Doctor Katrina Lines, said the organisation has experienced a 30 per cent increase in demand for its services since the beginning of the pandemic.

"Act for Kids is deeply grateful to be GPC's Port to Park community beneficiary this year and for GPC's generous support for Central Queensland children who have experienced trauma," Dr Lines said.

"The Safe Harbour Therapy Garden will provide already vulnerable children with an inclusive, safe, play based, active and educational space to support their well-being. We know natural, outdoor environments combined with therapeutic support are fundamental to children and families overcoming adversity," she said.

"In the 2019-2020, Act for Kids provided much-needed support to more than 285 children and families in the Rockhampton region and since we opened in Gladstone in November 2019. We have assisted more than 230 local children and families."

Mr Walker said GPC'S Port to Park fun run will be an unforgettable event that will help raise valuable funds and awareness for a worthy cause.

Previous Community Beneficiaries of GPC's Fun run initiative, previously known as the Botanic to Bridge, have included the Gladstone Hospital Children's Ward through Give Me 5 for Kids, Roseberry House, the Gladstone PCYC and the Boyne Island Environmental Educational Centre.

The new event will showcase our port and waterfront parklands, while offering enhanced vantage points and spaces for families and friends to enjoy the morning.

Honouring veterans

By Eilish Massie

The Gladstone RSL Sub-branch will host a Vietnam Veterans' Day Service to commemorate the 55th anniversary of the Battle of Long Tan on August 18.

The Battle of Long Tan was fought in a rubber plantation in South Vietnam on August 18 1966, 18 Australians died as their small group defeated a much larger force.

The Vietnam War cost 580 Australian their lives and is our longest war (1962-73) and biggest conflict since World War II.

RSL president Ed Dahlheimer said on the veterans' return home they suffered the ultimate insult of being shunned by the public, rejected by a hostile government and had the indignity to have their military service derided by an unsympathetic moratorium protest. The protest was based on false information and some weak individuals targeted veterans to vent their frustration.

"It was a national shame perpetrated by these misguided individuals," he said.

"This must never happen again to Australian veterans.

"Vietnam veterans are becoming thin on the ground however, those who are still with us will attend...they are faithful and feel it important to remember those who died," he said.

Gladstone has a number of Vietnam veterans throughout the region, including those who have succumbed to the effects of their service during the war.

Mr Dahlheimer said the aim of the service was to provide support and the sense of belonging that all veterans deserve.

"It is important that all veterans, ex-service men and women, citizens and their families know they will be made most welcome at any Vietnam Veterans Day service," he said.

The service will be at Anzac Park from 10.30am on Wednesday August 18. Residents are welcome to attend alongside Gladstone's Vietnam veterans.

Queensland Police have warned drivers it will be illegal to use a phone while driving from Monday 26 July.

Police warn drivers

By Eilish Massie

Gladstone police have warned motorists about mobile phone use whilst driving, with strict new rules set to take effect.

As of next Monday July 26, it will be illegal to hold a mobile phone in your hand or have it resting on any part of your body, such as your lap when driving. The rule applies even if you are stopped in traffic. The phone does not need to be turned on or in use for it to be an offence.

Gladstone Police issued a warning via social media after a number of fatal crashes in the region could have been 'avoided'.

"In the Gladstone area alone, we have had six fatal crashes where people have lost their lives," a QPS spokesman said.

"Every one of those people have family and friends and the trauma caused is indescribable.

"Police go to countless traffic crashes that are avoidable and we see serious injuries destroying lives every day.

"This should not be confusing, basically at no time should you be touching a mobile phone whilst being the driver of a vehicle unless you are stopped on the side of the road."

What you need to know:

A mobile phone can only be used when safely stopped to do things like:

- Pay for goods and services, for example at a drive through
- Gain access to or from a road-related area, such as a car park
- Present a digital driver licence or other document to police when asked

- Get a card or money out of a phone wallet for the above purposes

How it affects you:

- Current restrictions for learners and P1 licence holders under the age of 25 will remain, however will incorporate the exemptions listed above.
- Open and P2 licence holders can continue to use a phone hands-free, for instance in a cradle attached to the vehicle. They can also use a phone hands-free when it's in a pocket of their clothing or in a pouch that they are wearing, provided they can't see the screen and only operate the phone by using their voice.

For more information, visit qld.gov.au/transport/safety/road-safety/mobile-phones

Search for missing man

Police are renewing their appeal for community assistance to help locate a 64-year-old man after several sightings of him around Gladstone. John Bremer was last seen at a house on Cross Street around June 12.

John had intermittent contact with his family since however, has not contacted them since June 29.

Police have received several reports of him still being in the Gladstone area.

John is described as Caucasian in appearance, of medium build with short dark hair. He also has a greying beard.

He was last seen wearing jeans, a navy shirt and no shoes.

Anyone with information on John's whereabouts is encouraged to contact police.

Have you seen John Bremer?

Man hospitalised after scaffold fall

A man in his 30s was taken to hospital after he fell from scaffolding in Yarwun on Tuesday morning.

Paramedics were called to a site on Hanson Road about 9.30am after reports of a workplace incident.

A Queensland Ambulance Service spokeswoman said the man sustained chemical burns to his face, back, chest and arms and had significant leg injuries.

The QAS spokeswoman said he was taken to Gladstone Hospital in a stable condition.

Workplace Health and Safety were investigating.

Mountain rescue in dense bushland

By Eilish Massie

A mother and daughter were rescued from heavy bushland after they got lost on Mount Larcom on Saturday July 17.

The mother, 44, and daughter, 22, were rescued from the western side of the mountain after they became lost and disorientated whilst climbing.

RACQ Capricorn Rescue was tasked to the area at 4.30pm after reports one of the women had suffered minor scratches to her legs.

The two women were located on a steep slope after an initial search and phone communication with the rescue crewman.

Rescue crews were winched 150 feet into the scrub to retrieve the women before both were taken to Mount Larcom Carpark, where they were met by Queensland Police who took them home.

Both women were reported to be in good health.

Bare feet for clear mind

By Liam Emerton

A barefoot walk across the lawn is enough to make some people cringe, so imagine walking from Cairns to Sydney without any footwear.

That's exactly what one Dutch international is doing, all in the name of men's mental health.

Anton Nootenboom A.K.A The Barefoot Dutchman is walking the 2315km journey with a small pack and eventually reached Rockhampton on Tuesday night after leaving Cairns on 8 May.

His world-record journey is part of a bigger picture, raising money and funds and awareness for men's mental health by supporting Gotcha 4 Life and Tomorrow Man.

After completing the notoriously isolated Marlborough Stretch, The Barefoot Dutchman was making his way through the road works on the northern side of Parkhurst when CQ Today caught up with him.

"It is definitely a challenge, it's a challenge on top of a challenge because of Queensland roads and them all being made out of gravel," said Mr Nootenboom.

"It's been amazing, moments like this, every single day people are stopping over and coming to have a chat. It's what it is all about.

"I'm pretty much walking around with open arms for everyone to come and start the conversation mainly about men's mental health.

"Everyone is generally checking in, seeing if I'm alright, if I need anything, water, food or a place to stay. It's been amazing."

Speaking on his own mental health during the incredible feat of walking from Cairns, the Barefoot Dutchman said it's been an up-and-down battle.

"It's been a massive roller coaster," he said.

"It's been pretty strong this whole time. I have a pretty clear goal, I just want to reach Sydney and raise as much money as possible.

"Having a purpose and having a goal really helps you keep a clear mind but going through the Marlborough Stretch where there's a lot of nothingness, your mind wanders off.

"One reason why I do this walk is that I want to share as much as I learned when I was going through my own mental health issues.

"While walking I get to implement on myself again, as in when my mind is kind of sliding off, I just use all the little tools that I have learned on the way to get back into check."

A key checkpoint for Mr Nootenboom was the Rockhampton region where he was able to sleep on a bed for the first time in a long period of time.

"It is a really massive relief," he said.

"I kind of enjoyed the nothingness because it was really hectic from Day one organising it, to walking it and every day something happening.

"So the silence was kind of good but I cannot wait to start the second half of the match, which I feel like is about to happen.

The Caves Progress and Agricultural society Inc's Brad Jepson and Don Kime with Anton Nootenboom.

"I feel that from here a lot of good things are going to happen and spreading the awareness and a bit more opportunities for my own luxury to sleep in a bed and not just sleeping in a tent."

The Dutchman comes from the small town of Goes, which sits close to the border of Belgium, and served in the Dutch Army for a decade.

He then moved to Sydney in 2015 and fell in love with his new home.

He has completed some incredible feats since taking on the Barefoot Dutchman persona including hiking up to the Mount Everest Base Camp without footwear and was lucky enough to chat to Australia's own Hugh Jackman while on his current travels.

On his way through, the Barefoot Dutchman will walk through Gladstone before making his way further south along the coastline.

You can follow Mr Nootenboom's journey on his website at www.thebarefootdutchman.com/ and his Instagram account at thebarefoot\_dutchman.

The Caves Progress and Agricultural society Inc helped raise funding for the Dutchman's cause and donated the money in person which Mr Nootenboom was grateful for.

And as for his most valuable tool, his feet, the Barefoot Dutchman mentioned that "they're pretty sore," before laughing and restarting his journey towards Parkhurst.

Anton Nootenboom AKA the Barefoot Dutchman on his way through to Parkhurst on Monday afternoon.

Hunt for apprentices

Gladstone Ports Corporation (GPC) is on the hunt for the region's next generation of tradespeople to jump onboard its prestigious Apprentice Program, with applications now open for the 2022 intake.

The highly sought-after program offers a variety of disciplines, including electrical, diesel fitting, plumbing, mechanical and horticulture to a diverse range of people.

Chief Operating Officer Craig Walker said GPC was focused on building a strong workforce for the next 50 years and a skilled workforce was vital to Queensland's Covid recovery.

"One in four jobs in the region rely on trade and we are committed to providing outstanding employment outcomes for our apprentices and trainees through our competitive working arrangements, which deliver benefits to our employees, our organisation and to the region for the future," Mr Walker said.

"At GPC we aim to support them to develop world-class skills and expand their horizons, both with us and within the region,"

"We have a rich history of apprentices representing Australia through the World Skills program".

Minister for Regional Development and Manufacturing and Minister for Water and Member for Gladstone, Glenn Butcher, said a skilled workforce was vital to Queensland's pandemic recovery.

"Gladstone Ports Corporation's invaluable apprenticeships are helping build our regional workforce," Mr Butcher said.

"As a proud mechanical fitter and turner who did my apprenticeship with the Gladstone Power Station, I know how important it is to get a pathway to meaningful employment."

"Our apprentices and trainees will play a valuable role in this economic recovery and the Gladstone Port is a great place to get this on-the-job training," he said.

Each year GPC employs a number of new apprentices who demonstrate the ability to work safely in an industrial environment and have the motivation to learn and develop new skills and work constructively within a team. The apprentices and trainees will undertake a structured learning program, which includes a variety of training initiatives to enhance their skills and knowledge, improving their future and the future of the local community.

Applications close on 23 July at 4:30pm, and must be submitted online at <https://www.gpcl.com.au/vacancies>

For information about apprenticeships and traineeships at GPC, email or phone our Recruitment Team on 07 4976 1686.

Agnes Water's finest

By Eilish Massie

A new boutique promising the latest fashions from Australia and Europe opened in Agnes Water last week.

Resident Bernadette Heuschele opened 'By The Beach Boutique', her second store in the town, on July 15.

The new store offers stylish beach and resort wear, including hand-picked collections from around the world.

Shoppers can browse designer brands such as Sunflair, Olympia, Sunmarin, Carolina, So French So Chic, Orientique, Inika Organic, Rare Rabbit, Amorini and Caro the Label.

Ms Heuschele said she was excited to open another store in the township following the success of her homewares and gift store established in 2003.

"Agnes is such a special place and 'By The Beach Boutique' was bought to life through my enthusiasm and passion for bringing affordable, stylish, yet comfortable fashion to our coastal town," she said.

Community volunteers will help collect seagrass flowers from seagrass banks off Gladstone, Bundaberg and the Sunshine Coast for use in seagrass restoration.

The first collection for the year is set for next month.

Restoring lost seagrass

By Eilish Massie

CQ University has developed a new way to restore the 'substantial loss' of seagrass in Gladstone, Bundaberg and Sunshine Coast waters.

A citizen science project will use community volunteers to collect seagrass flowers off seagrass beds to germinate the seed and restore the vital food source for marine life.

CQ University Associate Professor Emma Jackson said substantial seagrass loss in Queensland waters had led to a recognition that seagrass restoration was urgently required to maintain important food sources for green turtles and dugong.

"Across Queensland there is developing public concern about the state of our ocean's seagrass and its ability to recover from storms and flood events," Prof Jackson said.

"Our project provides a proactive method so local people, voluntary organisations and apprenticeship schemes can become citizen scientists to help restore seagrass."

Prof Jackson said the Coastal Marine Ecosystems Research Centre seagrass nursery in Gladstone had its first emerging seagrass flower, which indicated that flowering will soon occur out on the natural meadows.

"We are looking forward to our first flower collection for the year, off Gladstone, on August 21," she said.

Queensland Chief Scientist Professor Hugh Possingham said the CQ University project would run for three years and was due for completion at the end of 2023.

"It was among 23 projects that were supported by more than $630,000 in the most recent Queensland Citizen Science grant round to help increase Queenslanders' participation in citizen science," Prof Possingham said.

"Involving the community in science projects not only helps researchers by increasing the scope of data collected, but it also helps increase the community's understanding of science and build critical thinking skills – vital in today's world where we rely on evidence to make informed decisions."

Member for Gladstone Glenn Butcher said CQUniversity had received $29,573 in Queensland Citizen Science Grants funding to involve the local community in important seagrass research.

"The Queensland Citizen Science Grants are designed to support scientists, organisations and community groups to conduct citizen science projects that tackle important issues in Queensland," Mr Butcher said.

Prof Jackson urged residents to volunteer in the program.

"We're asking anyone, young or old, in the local area to join the collection. No experience or science background is necessary to become a citizen scientist," she said.

"The trips usually involve boat travel so numbers are limited."

Important inland rail

By Duncan Evans

The federal government's mammoth Inland Rail infrastructure project features prominently in state Labor member for Rockhampton Barry O'Rourke's Rocky 2030 whitepaper, signalling the perceived importance of the multi-billion dollar rail line to the long-term prospects of Central Queensland.

Designed to improve the nation's freight network, Inland Rail is presently configured to run from Melbourne to Brisbane.

Calls for an extension of the line from the Southeast corner of Queensland to Gladstone have gathered steam over the last few months from a range of representatives across parties, including Queensland Labor Senator Anthony Chisholm, Gladstone Mayor and Labor's candidate for the division of Flynn Matt Burnett and state LNP member for Callide and the LNP candidate for the division of Flynn Colin Boyce.

Just last week, Deputy Prime Minister Barnaby Joyce told CQ Today that he supports an extension to Gladstone. "My view is, once we get to Toowoomba, we start driving for the bulk commodities to go into Gladstone, because in the long term, it's not going to work taking (them) through the centre of Brisbane. And your container traffic will probably still be coming out of Brisbane," he said.

"So my first discussions, it's not about either/or, it's 'and', it's both."

At the launch of his whitepaper on Monday morning, Mr O'Rourke said a line to Gladstone would unlock new opportunities across the broader region.

"If we actually see Inland Rail coming through to Gladstone, there is nothing stopping us tapping in on that for direct export," he said.

Section 3.3 of the whitepaper, titled Investing in Infrastructure, also discusses the potential benefits that Inland Rail could bring to the Rockhampton region.

"Having fast rail access to southern markets just an hour down the road would make the city even more appealing to businesses like manufacturers," the paper reads.

"Especially when coupled with existing transport links like the Port of Gladstone and Port Alma, as well as the prospect of an upgraded Rockhampton airport. The Inland Rail extension would also bring new opportunities in terms of maintenance work and freight imports."

Inland Rail is a multi-year project and the entire enterprise will be broken up into 13 separate 'sub-projects'. Each sub-project has its own timeline and there is no fixed date for the final completion of the entire project. The project is being orchestrated by the Australian Rail Track Corporation (ARTC), a government-owned corporation.

Agnes water voted a top tourism town

Agnes Water has reached the top 5 in a new poll showing the most booked spots in Queensland over the coming Christmas school holidays.

New data from Australia's Stayz website has found despite travel restrictions across the country, Australian families have instead turned to planning and booking their Christmas and Summer holidays months ahead of previous year booking trends.

Ranking fourth behind Rainbow Beach, Gold Coast and Redlands respectively, it appears the beach destination was quite popular with families to book their vacations for December this year.

"Whilst we've had the obvious cancellations due to lockdowns in Greater Sydney and shutting of borders in other parts of the country, demand for holiday homes remains high when looking ahead to future holiday periods," said Stayz travel expert, Simone Scoppa.

"What we are seeing is a change to how Aussies are booking with people securing their holiday homes more than six months in advance - twice as long as we'd traditionally experience for the Christmas and Summer holiday high season.

"They're also travelling much closer to home than ever before with all states picking hyper local destinations for their getaways, for the first time, we're seeing Australia's major cities rank amongst the top 10 destinations in some states, suggesting people are enjoying staycations, preferencing private homes over hotels or planning ahead to visit family and friends in other states that are based in metro areas."

Nationally, the Shoalhaven region in NSW is the most popular destination that Australians are booking now for summer.

Bookings to Shoalhaven are up 57 per cent compared to 2019 closely followed by Mornington Peninsula, the Sunshine Coast, Melbourne, Central Coast in NSW and the Hunter Valley.

All these destinations have seen significant growth with most bookings up 45 per cent compared to 2019 for the December and January holiday period.

"Beach getaways are still top of the list for where Aussie travellers are booking for December to kick off their summer holidays, we suspect planning and booking a quintessential Aussie beach Christmas is giving Aussies something to look forward to after what is proving another challenging year," added Scoppa.

Art grants up for grabs

By Jackie Dobson

Expressions of interest are currently being accepted for Gladstone Regional Council's Regional Arts Development Fund (RADF) Round Two 2020-21 funding.

RADF is a partnership between Gladstone Regional Council and Queensland Government to support local arts and culture in regional Queensland.

Gladstone Regional Councillor Glenn Churchill said individuals and local arts and culture groups are encouraged to apply for the funding.

"RADF promotes the role and value of the arts, culture and heritage as key drivers to support diversity and inclusivity," Cr Churchill said.

"It also helps to grow strong regions and provides training, education and employment opportunities for Queensland artists and local communities."

Short term projects may be eligible for funding in the following categories: Developing Regional Skills, Building Community and Cultural Capacity, Regional Partnerships, Cultural Tourism, Concept Development and Contemporary Collections / Stories.

"Three grant writing workshops will take place between 29-31 July, with individual sessions open by appointment," Cr Churchill said.

"Expressions of interest for RADF Round Two close at 4pm on Friday July 30, ahead of applications closing on Friday August 27 for projects commencing after October 6."

Gladstone Regional Council RADF Liaison Officer and Gladstone Regional Art Gallery and Museum Cultural Specialist Di Paddick said the strength of the program is the volunteer RADF committee.

"They do the assessments of the applications that come in and make recommendations for Council which are considered at our General Meetings," Ms Paddick said.

EOI window is now open for RADF Round Two funding submissions.

"This allows the community to see the type of applications and projects that are coming through.

"During the expression of interest process we pair up our applicants with a committee member to help them through the process.

"The committee and the community work together side by side during the workshops.

"We are hosting Flying Arts Alliance to present the workshops at Tannum Sands, Captain Creek and Gladstone so we can reach broadly our community.

"To find out more, please contact the team at Gladstone Regional Art Gallery & Museum if you have any questions surrounding RADF Round Two funding."

Guidelines and applications forms for Round Two 2020-21 funding are available online via www.grgm.qld.gov.au/radf or from Council's offices, venues and libraries.

Finding your lost super

By Eilish Massie

Gladstone residents have been urged to check on their retirement savings after latest figures revealed more than $26 million in lost and unclaimed superannuation was sitting in unused accounts. Latest Australian Taxation Office (ATO) figures revealed more than $26.3 million in lost and unclaimed super was sitting in 6,000 unused accounts in Gladstone and the surrounding area. The substantial amount has resulted in Gladstone's postcode to be ranked fifth in Queensland's top 10 postcodes with the most lost and unclaimed super, QSuper has revealed.

QSuper's Chief of Member Experience Jason Murray said the start of a new financial year was the ideal time to do an annual super health check.

"It's easy to do a quick super check-up while you're using the ATO's online services through myGov," Mr Murray said.

"After you have accessed and reviewed your income statement, click the super tab on the ATO online home page to view your super fund details and employer contributions for the year.

"You'll be able to see all of your super, including any old super fund accounts you may have forgotten about as well as any money the ATO is holding for you."

Mr Murray said Gladstone residents could have thousands of dollars being held by the ATO, and potentially more money sitting with old super funds if they have changed jobs numerous times.

"The annual caps on before and after-tax contributions increased from July 1 which will give savers the option of adding even more to their super this year."

Mr Murray said it was especially important for women, who generally retire with less due to the gender pay gap and time out of the workforce, to review their super at least once a year and talk to their super fund or financial adviser about ways to boost their balance.

QSuper member data shows Gladstone women aged 60-64 are retiring with, on average, a balance of almost $259,000 while men in the region are retiring with more than $470,000.

QSuper's five-step super check at tax time:

1. Find your super

If you have ever changed your name, address, job or lived overseas, you may have unintentionally lost track of some of your super. Your lost or unclaimed super may be held by your super fund (as a lost member), or by the ATO. Having more than one super account could mean you're paying multiple fees and charges.

2. Review your investments

Reviewing how your super is invested can make a big difference to your retirement. Your investment choices may change over time. What's right for you at age 25 may not be right for you as you get closer to retirement and want to take less risk. Do an annual review to consider the mix of each asset class that best suits your circumstances.

3. Check your insurance

Many people have automatic life insurance cover inside their super. If you have insurance, check the total benefits available to you and review your premiums. Your premiums are paid from your super balance so make sure your cover is right for your current circumstances.

4. Claim a tax deduction

If you made any personal, after-tax contributions to your super last financial year you could claim a deduction and potentially boost your return this tax time. Before you claim, check how much space you have left in your annual limits. If you claim a tax deduction on an after tax contribution it will be treated by your fund as a before-tax contribution and be subject to last year's $25,000 concessional contribution cap.

5. Add to your super

Thanks to the magic of compound interest, making small, extra contributions throughout your working life can make all the difference over time. You can also make extra contributions from your pre-tax income by salary sacrificing or, if you're on a low income or not working, get your spouse to make after-tax contributions on your behalf.

Cassy Jones' legacy lives on with park upgrade

The legacy of Cassy Jones has grown even stronger following the recent completion of the Cassy Lives Skate Park upgrade.

Minor works including landscaping, seating, bins and signage have now been completed through the Queensland Government's Covid Works for Queensland program in association with Gladstone Regional Council.

Council undertook extensive community consultation prior to redesigning the skate park, firstly in October and November 2019 to understand the community's needs and priorities regarding the skate park and again in July and August 2020 with the community voting on their favourite design.

Gladstone Region Mayor Matt Burnett said design option two was the most popular choice.

"This option complemented the style of the existing facilities in the area and the retained steel half pipe," Mayor Burnett said.

"It also provides areas of flat open space with technical street features that can appeal to skaters of all skill levels."

Member for Gladstone Glenn Butcher welcomed the upgrades to the Cassy Lives Skate Park.

The legacy of Cassy Jones has grown even stronger following the recent completion of the Cassy Lives Skate Park upgrade.

"It's fantastic to see these upgrades completed and open for the kids and families of Gladstone to enjoy," Minister Butcher said.

"This investment is part of the Palaszczuk Government's Covid-19 Economic Recovery Plan, which is creating jobs in the Gladstone Region now, when we need them the most."

"I thank Mayor Matt Burnett and the Council for delivering this project which helps the Gladstone Region be the best place in Australia to live, work, and enjoy a great lifestyle."

Cassy Lives Skate Park is named after Cassy Jones, who sadly passed away from melanoma, aged 14, on 1 August 1990.

In her last few months, Cassy set out to increase awareness of skin cancer by starting a campaign with the Queensland Cancer Fund.

Cassy also developed and raised money for her research fund, Cassy's Wish, which supported melanoma research and the Charles Wanstall Lodge in Herston, Brisbane.

Gladstone City Council, now Gladstone Regional Council, supported Cassy by naming a local park near Briffney Creek in her honour, naming it the Cassy Lives Park.

In 1996, within the park, Council constructed a skate park, which is still fondly known as the Cassy Lives Skate Park.

Please visit <https://conversations.gladstone.qld.gov.au/cassy-lives-skate-park> for more information about Cassy Jones.

The $325,000 Cassy Lives Skate Park upgrade works was fully funded by the Queensland Government's Covid Works for Queensland program.

Along with the Banana Shire, the Queensland Rotary Bowelscan Committee is hoping that a whole-of-town approach will turn that around with an important awareness campaign.

Cancer campaign

By Eilish Massie

New data has revealed Biloela is above the national average for excess bowel cancer deaths.

Figures from the Australian Cancer Atlas' latest report indicates Biloela is 20 per cent above the national average with more than 15,000 people diagnosed each year.

In order to raise awareness, Banana Shire Council and Queensland Rotary Bowelscan Committee have launched a campaign to help change the township's approach.

On Monday June 19, the #GetYourBumIntoGearBiloela Week was launched to grab the attention of the whole town including council, health professionals, businesses, sporting groups and volunteer groups.

Following on from the highly successful #GetYourBumIntoGearQLD Tour last April, Rotary is hoping to raise awareness of bowel cancer, the symptoms, encouraging over 50s to use the free government test kits and to help prevent early onset under age 50 bowel cancers.

Queensland Rotary Bowelscan Committee Mal Padgett said Biloela residents were 'visibly shocked' when they heard the high bowel cancer statistic for their town.

"Many think bowel cancer is just an old person's disease but 10 per cent are under 50. That is around 1550 Australians annually or 30 young people a week are told, 'You have bowel cancer.'"

Banana Shire Council Mayor Nev Ferrier encouraged the community to go get tested.

"Help spread the message through your community or workplace anyway you can and we can get this number down."

Rotary are selling their test kits online for $20 or you can buy one at your local pharmacies in Biloela who are participating, Biloela Discount Chemist and Biloela Medical Centre Pharmacy.

Until July 31, search for #BowelscanQLD to find and follow Rotary's campaign social media and also to purchase a kit online.

Future city views

By Eilish Massie

Students across the Gladstone and Banana region got a glimpse of what the city could look like in 30 years, at a recent launch of a program at CQ University on Wednesday.

CQU STEM Central hosted the first of a three-part city design challenge for year five to eight students from Redeemer Lutheran College, Biloela State High School, Toolooa State High School, Clinton State School and Gladstone West State School.

27 students got to explore what Gladstone could look like in three decades, and focused on an initiative that could change the industry town with sustainability, technology and community by 2050.

STEM Central Lead and CQ University lecturer Dr Linda Pfeiffer said the first stage of the Gladstone Future Cities Challenge, seeing students build the foundation of their ideas.

"The Future Cities Hackathon will allow students to explore innovations that are being lead around the world in future city design, identify opportunities around Gladstone for innovation, and work through a google inspired design sprint process to develop the foundation of their initiative to pilot in Gladstone."

After completing the Future Cities Hackathon, Dr Pfeiffer said students will move into the Future Cities Design Challenge to continue developing their ideas throughout the term.

The challenge will involve students joining a 60 minute virtual masterclass once a week delivered by a team from BOP Industries.

BOP Industries spokeswoman Maddie Panther said the masterclass will deliver relevant content to help students develop ideas and help with additional tasks later through the term.

"After students submit their ideas at the end of term three, they will be judged by a panel of experts from CQUniversity, BOP Industries and Australia Pacific LNG directly before the official awards which will celebrate the achievements of the top teams," she said.

The Gladstone Future Cities Challenge is a jointly coordinated event between CQUniversity and BOP Industries.

New glowing caretaker

By Duncan Evans

A work of art designed and installed by artist Belynda Waugh adds a striking component to the innovative Wrapt in Mugul art exhibition currently on display around the Miriam Vale portion of Central Queensland.

The work of art, titled “Caretakers”, presents a tall light sculpture made of clear polycarbonate with inbuilt solar lighting. The external layer is transparent in places, and shows images of the caretakers of Mugul, the Indigenous term for Mt Colosseum.

In the night, it glows like soft fire.

In a telephone call with CQ Today, Ms Waugh said it had taken her roughly a week to design and assemble the piece.

When asked whether she was happy with the final manifestation of her vision, she replied:

“Yes, kind of. I always see something that I could do a bit better, but that’s just me. But from what I understand it looks good at night, it’s close to the road and it just glows.”

CQ Today invited Ms Waugh to submit a short piece outlining her vision for Caretakers, and she replied with the following short poem:

*Be still and listen
Look closely and you will see
This place in another time
Sacred to both you and me.
Look back and see the old ones, our elders*

*Listen to their stories and lore.
They have always been here on this mountain*

Those that walked this land before

The exhibition is divided into two areas, with five works of installation art positioned along the Bruce Highway between the towns of Bororen and Miriam Vale, and ten pieces positioned at the base of Mt Colosseum.

The pieces along the highway will be open to visitors and commuters at all hours of the day, while the pieces by Mt Colosseum will be open between Wednesday and Sunday from 10am to 4pm.

Driving goodwill

The Boyne Island Low Vision Group has supported people with low vision and sight loss for the past 11 years. About 16 members regularly meet for morning tea and social support monthly, sponsored by the Boyne Island Lions Club.

Local transport was a problem for members living in Gladstone until Dave Byars, who has a guide dog named Harvey, spoke with Leeane Kendrick from Senior Citizens about hiring a bus to take people from Gladstone to Boyne Island.

Ms Kendrick proved to be most helpful and gave the group a reduction in the usual fee and the low vision group would provide the fuel and a driver.

“The latter was easy to come by as the husband of one of our members (Ian Jennings) agreed the next hurdle was paying for the fuel,” a spokesperson said.

“Once again, Dave mentioned our plight this time to the manager of Bendigo Bank at Calliope who generously donated a cheque to cover the fuel for eight months to the end of the year.

“People would travel for free if they paid the small membership of senior citizens. Our April meeting was the first time the bus brought Gladstone members down to Boyne Island.”

The group meets at Boyne Community Centre Castle Tower on the fourth Tuesday of each month.

Gladstone Regional Council's highly anticipated award winning Luminous – Heritage Trail was a massive hit on July 16-17. Thousands flocked to the Tondoon Botanic Gardens and several landmarks within Gladstone's CBD to view the impressive light displays.

Gladstone Regional Councillor Rick Hansen said the family friendly event had something for everyone.

"The gardens were packed with massive light displays, illuminated art, live music, roving entertainment, workshops, children's activities and a spectacular water activation on Lake Tondoon," he said.

In addition to the main Luminous festivities, a specially designed Heritage Trail was also activated along Goondoon Street to mark the occasion.

The Luminous - Heritage Trail lit up buildings including the Old Gladstone Post Office, Kullaroo House, Gladstone Entertainment Convention Centre and the Gladstone Library.

"The Heritage Trail allowed the community to take themselves or their family on a walk down Goondoon Street to see some special buildings that were lit up to celebrate Luminous," Cr Hansen said.

It was free to attend and was accompanied by a launch event, Luminous – Ignite the Heritage, in the Entertainment Precinct along Goondoon Street on Thursday July 15.

"The event featured market stalls, food vendors and live entertainment bringing an "Eat Street" style event to Gladstone's city centre," Cr Hanson said.

Symphony to return

Queensland Symphony Orchestra will return to Gladstone this August for the ninth consecutive year of the much-loved Symphony Under the Stars community event.

Following last year's success, Symphony Under the Stars will be performed on Friday August 27 at 7pm, at the GPC Marina Stage.

Supported by Australia Pacific LNG operated by ConocoPhillips, Gladstone Regional Council, Gladstone Entertainment Convention Centre, and Gladstone Ports Corporation, the event will take audiences on a fantastic trip around the world.

Conducted and hosted by Guy Noble, the concert will also feature QSO Section Principal Viola Imants as soloist, who will perform Bruch's Romance in F major, for Viola & Orchestra, op.85.

Queensland Symphony Orchestra Chief Executive Craig Whitehead said the musicians were excited to return to Gladstone, a place they loved visiting.

"Last year, Gladstone was the first location QSO was able to visit, and perform for, after the COVID-19 lockdown," he said.

"Almost 1,500 people joined the Orchestra over two nights and we all look forward to experiencing the same joy later this year."

As in previous years, a local highlight will be the inclusion of Gladstone students joining Queensland Symphony Orchestra on stage.

For the QSO's Prodigy Project seven talented high school students have been selected to join the Orchestra in a performance of the famous Galop from the William Tell Overture.

MP Glenn Butcher said the orchestra's consistent visits to the region were of vital importance.

"It provides an amazing opportunity for our community to see high quality performances, which capture both classical and modern compositions and engages audiences of diverse musical tastes."

"We are extremely fortunate to have the Queensland Symphony Orchestra's visit regional Queensland to provide this experience and in particular, play a vital role in educating and mentoring arising performers."

Gladstone Region Mayor Matt Burnett said

Justin Bullock, Phoebe Russell, and Tim Corkeron perform at the GPC Marina Stage

he had a lot of respect for conductor Guy Noble.

"Previous Symphony Under the Stars attendees will be familiar with Guy's achievements," Cr Burnett said.

"Guy has an extensive resume including stints with the Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Western Australian, Tasmanian, Queensland and Canberra symphony orchestras, as well as the Auckland Philharmonia Orchestra and the Hong Kong Symphony and Malaysian Philharmonic orchestras.

"Guy has worked with a wide variety of international performers including Harry Connick Jr, Ben Folds, The Beach Boys, Glenn Frey, Randy Newman, Olivia Newton John and many others."

In the course of the next three years, the Orchestra aims to provide experiences for special schools and the Endeavour Foundation Gladstone Learning and Lifestyle program.

The nature of these experiences will be determined by research and pilot programs carried out in the Brisbane region in the latter part of 2021 and 2022.

Through the power of music, the Orchestra aims to provide hope, happiness and health in all communities.

Symphony Under the Stars with Queensland Symphony Orchestra is a free event on August 27 at GPC Marina Stage from 7pm.

Three legends making more memories

Three Australian music legends have come together to present 3 Legends in Concert live in Gladstone soon.

The line-up includes Australia's first King of Pop Normie Rowe, the Queen of the Mods Dinah Lee and Australia's King of Country Rock Jade Hurley.

The trio bring back the energy and excitement from the Wonder Years of the Sixties - the perfect reflection of an era.

The audience is guaranteed a sensational show of great music and wonderful memories, proudly presented by Bob McKinnon and Brian Fogarty.

Normie Rowe AM was Australia's first King of Pop with hits including "Shakin' All Over", "Ohh La La" and "It Ain't Necessarily So" and starred in a myriad of stage shows including "Annie", "Chess", "Evita" and as Jean Valjean in Les Miserables. He has done it all and now brings his showmanship to the port city with two of his counterparts.

Dinah Lee (Queen of the MODS) is a New Zealand born superstar with her International Number One Hits "Don't You Know Yockomo", "Reet Petite" and "Do the Blue Beat" and is acknowledged as New Zealand's greatest musical import to Australia.

Jade Hurley OAM dubbed by Johnny O'Keefe as "Australia's King of Country Rock" is Australia's very own "Piano Man" with the unique "record" that every record he has released has achieved GOLD, PLATINUM or DOUBLE Status in Australia and New Zealand.

See more details in our coming events section on page 19

Jade Hurley, Normie Rowe and Dinah Lee will help bring back many music memories.

The best buskers

By Eilish Massie

The city will come alive with music this weekend, as the Australian National Busking Competition gets underway.

Buskers from across the region will perform at various times and locations around the city on Saturday as part of the annual regional competition.

Established in 2012 in Cooma NSW, the ANBC has grown into a network of busking festivals, held in country towns and regional centres all over Australia.

Gladstone buskers will play at designated stations on the day and will perform up to four half-hour sets.

Judges will assess the performances, and the public will have an opportunity to vote on their favourite buskers by tipping with 'Busker Tokens', which can be purchased from volunteers for $1 on the day.

Winners will be announced at the Regional Finals Concert and Awards Presentation at East Shores at 5pm and from there, winners will be invited to compete in the ANBC National Grand Final in Cooma, NSW.

Entry forms are available online for local musos with the ANBC's Entry Form or on the GAPDL website at gladstoneregion.info

The event begins this Saturday in the Gladstone CBD from 9am to 4pm.

A finals concert and awards Presentation will be held at 5.00pm on the Auckland House main stage, GPC East Shores.

A Better Alternative to the Mt Morgan Pipeline

Sir,
The proposed water pipeline to Mt Morgan is going to take years to come about.
Assuming that is finance becomes available it will still take a long time after that.
Deepening our existing dam would be the only reasonable and cheap solution to our water problem.
This would not be a total solution but would hopefully add considerably to our water supply.
Put this idea to a vote by the ratepayers the time for this action is now, before we get rain.

Keith Ross

A Critique of the Labor Party

Sir,
If labor are to win the next election they have to stop this obscene fetish for blaming Scom for everything.
Their negativity is alarming. When Job-keeper was announced, they said it fell short on the money available, then two days later say we are heading for a trillion dollar deficit, make up your mind.
Labor have to get back to grassroots the workers. Arthur Calwell and Gough Whitlam were visionaries who could see our potential, only thing Gough said in 1976 we needed to get more middle to upper-class of people into Labor ranks.

What we got was a lot of drongos. Labor needs to stop complaining about everything and be good in opposition to put pressure on the government. They look lame to silly with their comments.

And our state Queensland has a deputy premier who has a PhD in Unionism, Dr Steven Miles that will be 30 minutes he won't get back, and the boss is over in Tokyo for a photo shoot to get the Olympics, we will get them as everyone else pulled out, no one wants its poison chalis, but the infrastructure will be good for Brisbane forget the rest of the state.

Remember people Australia purchased 20 million doses of the Pfizer vax, but the unelected European Union said we don't have a problem and stopped the shipment, that's why we have a problem getting everyone vaccinated. But we will get there. Be safe, get the vax and we will move on.

Thoughts on ANCAP

Sir,
Many people are unaware that all vehicles have an ANCAP rating.
ANCAP is the car safety rating system used in Australia and New Zealand that analyses primary features that protect us from having a crash and secondary features that save us from a crash.
The safest rating is 5 stars and the lowest is 1 star.
What are the primary features that we should consider when considering purchasing a vehicle for our daily drives that will protect us from crashing?
ABS is a primary feature that allows steering control during braking to help avoid a collision. ABS works by activating brakes on and off many times per second during a heavy braking procedure, preventing brakes locking up and creating loss of control.
ESC, or Electronic Stability Control, is a feature that helps drivers avoid losing control from emergency swerving by detecting skidding and applying control to individual wheels to stabilise the car.
AEB, or Autonomous Emergency Braking, is a devise that detects when you are travelling too close to another vehicle and will apply the brakes to reduce the chances of a crash.
What are some of the secondary features that save us from a crash?
Features such as structural integrity will help to dissipate the forces of a crash through crumple zones that disperse the forces away from the occupants. This improves survival from high speed crashes.

Air bags are a secondary feature that protect us from impacting parts of the vehicle with cushioning.
5-star rated cars have a number of air bags including protection from the front, side, curtain and legs. The most important secondary feature is the seatbelt.

We need to ensure that we adjust the height adjuster so that the belt is not against our neck and ensure that the lap belt is across our hip bones and not on our stomach to prevent spinal injury in the event of a collision.

It is important that we consider safety features when purchasing a vehicle but it doesn't matter what vehicle we purchase when it comes down to the contact a vehicle has on our road surface.

Tyres are only the width of an average hand and it is so important that we ensure that our tyres are in good condition.

The newer the tyre the better the grip and the better the stopping ability because when tyres wear down their performance deteriorates. The legal tread depth on tyres is 1.5 mm and a wear indicator is a lug in the depth of the tread to warn you when you need to replace your tyre.

If you experience noises, vibrations in the steering or anything abnormal, please get it checked as a front tyre blow out can be extremely dangerous at high speeds.

Stay safe on our roads and look into ANCAP when purchasing a new vehicle.

Lynch's Jokes of the Week

A duck walks into a bar.
He props himself up to the bar and asks the barman if he had any bread.
The barman replies, "No I don't have any bread."
The duck asks again, "Do you have any bread?"
"No," replied the barman.
For the third time the duck asked the barman if he had any bread.
By this time the barman had just about had enough and said to the duck, "Listen you keep asking me for bread and I will nail you bill to the bar."
The duck paused for a second and asked the barman, "Have you got any nails?" The barman replied, "No".
This then bought the duck to ask the question, "Do you have any bread?"

Risk of the three Cs

There are three big challenges we face right now - or three "C's" - COVID, Climate Change and China. We will get on top of Covid eventually even though it could be with us forever thanks to the Chinese Communist Party.

The latest lockdowns seem a costly and futile attempt to eradicate the virus. Given the continuing spread of the Delta strain, even in countries with high vaccination rates, eradicating Covid is not realistic in the long term.

The virus Made in China will be defeated by the vaccines Made in America and the UK.

Vaccine supply has been slower than expected thanks to border controls and the clotting issues with AstraZeneca. But 4.5 million Pfizer doses are due to arrive in Australia this month and by the end of the year there should be sufficient supply for all Australians.

Climate change is a long term problem requiring global cooperation to fix. There is no point reducing our emissions, and putting Australians out of work, even if we can't trust other countries to reduce their emissions.

Which brings me to the other "C" of China. Last year, China announced that it plans to achieve net zero emissions by 2060.

In the same year they installed 38.4 gigawatts of new coal fired power - double Australia's capacity. Listen to what people do, not what they say.

China already accounts for one third of the world's emissions.

Senator Matt Canavan says China will take advantage of the west's naivety just as they have done over the past two decades.

If the rest of the world reduce their emissions, this will only help China to steal more industrial capacity and jobs, and probably increase global emissions in the process. There is no doubt that China will take advantage of the west's naivety just as they have done over the past two decades.

Twenty years ago, we let China join the World Trade Organisation. We hoped that greater trade would encourage China to open their economy and liberalise their politics. We were wrong.

Instead, the Chinese Communist Party has taken an inch and run a mile. China still refuses to comply with their WTO obligations to publish the assistance they provide to industry. Some estimates say that 80 per cent of the profits of Chinese steel firms come from government subsidies. Last year, China produced almost 60 per cent of the world's steel.

There is no reason to think China would be any more compliant with an international climate agreement. China won't let health inspectors work out the origins of a virus but they do have two spy ships off the Central Queensland Coast listening in on the Australia-US-Japan training exercises at Shoalwater Bay.

The imminent threat to our children's prosperity and freedom comes from an aggressive China not climate change. China now threatens the territorial integrity of its neighbours and it does so from a position of industrial strength.

In the face of China's aggression and blatant breaches of international law, what should Australia do? We should be restoring our industrial strength. There are only so many things a country can do at once. A massive effort to reach net zero carbon emissions would only threaten our ability to build back our ability to make things.

To increase our manufacturing we will need government action to prevent subsidised Chinese goods from flooding our markets and destroying any potential for Australian manufacturing to thrive.

President Xi Jinping gave a speech to commemorate 100 years of the Chinese Communist Party a few weeks ago. He did not mention climate change once. He did call for the reunification of China and Taiwan.

The risk of China invading Taiwan has much larger implications for our nation than climate change. As much as we would like to wish it otherwise, we will not have global action on climate change until we restore peaceful cooperation among nations. As the Roman general Vegetius said if you want peace, prepare for war.

Finding your purpose

I have been considering the best way to deliver this article for a while and whether I should write it at all.

I feel like if I can help anyone else who has been experiencing similar to feel less alone, coax them back into their purpose and see their worth, it's a win, right?

Firstly I am feeling blessed beyond words.

I started a new job last month and I feel like it has had the most powerful positive ripple effect.

I am immensely grateful to the people who gave me a chance and gifted me with a very special opportunity.

Just over six months prior to this chance and welcome change, my sense of purpose had done a runner and because purpose apparently has a petty side, it took my confidence and self-worth with it.

This started around when I had committed to leaving a situation that would no longer support me which was liberating until it wasn't.

Instead I took a deep dive into a space where there was a lot of darkness, demons, and hard truths that harboured their fair share of heartache.

THIS WEEK WITH JORDIE

Sidenote: I don't believe struggle is measured by time; it's measured by feeling, and pain and suffering isn't something that should be justified to others. Feelings aren't finances that need approval; they just really need the right attention, assistance and action.

My mental health endured countless knocks and the negative effects spread across my social, spiritual and physical wellbeing like wildfire.

As a result, my overthinking was kicked into high gear which caused an unbridled fear to wreak havoc on my basic everyday existence.

Suddenly I was second-guessing absolutely everything I did, everything I said and everything I stood for while fumbling around in the dark looking for the light at the end of the tunnel and giving my demons the attention they needed. I noticed I started to view the world around me differently too.

I grew deeply disheartened as the dark domino effect knocked me down and flattened all the goodness that I once saw around me.

I began to feel rejected by Rocky, where I have lived and a place I have loved for 24 years. I was sitting on the fence with my faith mulling over everything from my next move right through to some low acts from people I once thought so highly of.

Last month, I finally reached my light at the end of the tunnel and it was this opportunity that was my beautiful beacon of hope.

Everyone deserves to feel that sense of warmth and see that stunning light to guide them out of that cold dark lonely space.

I have learned a lot of valuable lessons over the past few months and I genuinely feel stronger within myself since I embraced certain vulnerabilities.

My purpose has returned and it kindly brought some confidence and self-worth back to me.

I will also never forget the people who saw something in me when I started to lose sight of myself.

If you are struggling, feeling lost and alone, please reach out to someone – anyone.

Life may not always be a walk in the park but you should never feel like you have to walk alone. I couldn't have gotten to where I am without my incredible support system.

We all deserve to live to our full potential and do what we love as happy, healthy human beings in mind, body, soul and life.

Help is always available if you need it. You are valuable and so very worthy of it. With the right support, you can rebuild your best life from the mind up.

Music and art festival

UNDER THE TREES

WITH BILL CRANE

Under The Trees (UTT) is a laid back music and arts festival located 'under the trees' at the soccer fields on Jacaranda Drive, Boyne Island. It is proudly organised by the community, for the community, entirely run and built by volunteers and it's now back for 2021 after being cancelled last year.

There will be two stages, street theatre performances, multiple food stalls and two bars. Interstate and local acts will perform a mix of genres ranging from blues to rock and reggae to deliver an outdoor festival experience for all ages.

This year, there is an added bonus with the UTT inaugural Art Gala event. This will be an evening of art appreciation, showcasing local talented creatives, accompanied by live music and entertainment. Art and festival dressings will also make the festival a unique and special event, helping to create lots of memories.

Pick up and enjoy a selection of fine food and stop by at the Wine Tasting Bar before strolling through the festival grounds on a tour of intrigue, while being entertained by the whimsical Meraki Circus Performers.

After enjoying the food, follow through to the art gallery and finish the evening at The Shrubbery stage with family and friends, as the musicians take you through their set. All in all a great weekend to look forward to.

Tickets are on sale now.

The Darter

BIRDS OF BOYNE & TANNUM

BOB TRASK

The Australasian Darter is a large, slim water bird with a long snake-like neck and sharp pointed bill.

After a time in the water, it will perch and open its wings to dry them out before flying off!

Although its gait seems clumsy on land, it soars gracefully in flight.

The Australasian Darter can be seen in the Gladstone region.

THREE ... different coffees to try

For some, drinking coffee is a daily ritual, and others a means of survival. While your caffeine addiction might have you reaching for a cup regularly, if you find yourself getting bored of the same flavours, it might be time to switch your order up. Here's some quirky variations we recommend:

1 Dirty chai on soy
The spices mixed with espresso and steamed milk is delightful for those who don't like strong coffee. Dirty chai also has a range of health benefits including aiding heart and gut health, and easing diabetes.

2 Iced oat milk latte
An iced oat milk latte is a refreshing drink made of espresso, oat milk and ice. The slightly sweet and smooth milk alternative has seen a recent surge in popularity with consumers citing environmental and nutritional benefits.

3 Bullet coffee
A mix of coffee, MCT oil and butter, this keto coffee is an energising drink sure to kick start your day. The bullet coffee is suited to many diets including paleo, keto, and intermittent fasting. It's lack of carbs triggers weight loss through ketosis, and it is also said to boost cognitive function.

Keep ugliness away

DEAR GLADSTONE

LYNDAL HANSEN

Could you imagine what it would be like to leave your existing life to go in search of opportunities or something better?

Imagine leaving everything you know, everything you are familiar with, leaving loved ones and family homes to start a new life. It sounds scary and exciting all at the same time.

Now imagine when you get there that some people do not want you there. They tell you to go home, stop taking their jobs and how dare you have different values and beliefs to them.

Oh, and by the way, the language you speak is not the language that the people in this new place speak (even if it's English, it's not the same English).

When you arrive in this wonderful and exhilarating place, you can't find work, not because you're not skilled, but because businesses are not sure about you and some employers will not consider your application.

Your child is at school being bullied and the decision makers just say, "Your child needs to build resilience", or "We will bring your child and the bully into a meeting to sort it out." Your child is confused and has no idea what they have done wrong.

For the time being you cannot go back to your old life. Your nightmare keeps happening over and over on repeat.

This scenario is happening in our community and not just to internationals (for some this term might be migrant, immigrant or other nationalities), but also to Australians moving to the Gladstone region to start a new adventure.

There can be an ugly side to having a rich and vibrant multicultural society.

In the past few weeks alone, I have had three conversations with people who, in some way, have experienced the above scenario. People who have been here for six months to two years and are facing the daily difficulties of not fitting in and unable to find friends or employment.

Gladstone, we really do need to understand that new people to our region contribute to the complex tapestry of our community, a tapestry that we can all be proud of.

New people bring experience, knowledge and a worldliness that any community will benefit from if all the gates are open and we let them in with respect and compassion.

There is an ugly side to having a rich and vibrant multicultural society. I would have thought that we would have learnt from our previous mistakes and not allow this ugliness to keep seeping in.

BE KIND
Practice not judging others. You have not walked in their shoes and you do not know how their lives have been impacted.

Gladstone is a great place to live, but we need to continually improve and welcome everyone openly.

TOP PICKS OF THE WEEK

FRIDAY CONTROL

ABC TV PLUS, 8.30pm

Photographer and music video director Anton Corbijn's debut feature pays a fitting tribute to Joy Division singer Ian Curtis, whose personal, professional and romantic troubles led him to commit suicide at the age of 23. Corbijn, who worked with the Manchester band, steers clear of the flashy music biopic trend, using black and white footage to detail how young Curtis (Sam Riley, right) dreamt of becoming a star like his idols David Bowie and Iggy Pop, but was instead struck down by depression, epilepsy and grief. Torn between his wife Debbie (Samantha Morton) and girlfriend Annik (Alexandra Maria Lara), while grappling with medication side-effects and the physical toll of performing, this elegiac film offers an inside perspective into Curtis' anguished spirit.

FRIDAY

OLYMPIC GAMES TOKYO 2020: OPENING CEREMONY

SEVEN, 9pm

There's no denying sport's ability to transcend barriers and entertain. Tonight's Opening Ceremony, from Tokyo's National Stadium, promises to be a triumph of optimism and spectacle. The primetime Olympic broadcasting team includes Hamish McLachlan and Abbey Gelmi (right), along with veteran commentator Bruce McAvaney.

FRIDAY

BIRDMAN

SBS WORLD MOVIES, 9.30pm

Washed-up actor Riggan (Michael Keaton, above) – famous for portraying comic book superhero “Birdman” – as he struggles to mount a Broadway play, is the subject of this black comedy. In the days leading up to opening night, he battles his ego as he tackles run-ins with his volatile leading man (Edward Norton), recently rehabbed daughter (Emma Stone), a grudge-carrying critic (Lindsay Duncan), amateur starlet (Naomi Watts), panicked producer (Zach Galifianakis) and ex-wife (Amy Ryan).

FRIDAY

SILVER LININGS PLAYBOOK

10 PEACH, 9.30pm

Pat Solitano (Bradley Cooper, below) is down on his luck to say the least. After spending time in a mental health facility, losing his wife and his house, he's living with his parents (Jacki Weaver and Robert De Niro) and trying to get his life back on track, all the while sharing his family's obsession with the Philadelphia Eagles football team. When he meets the equally messed up Tiffany (Oscar-winner Jennifer Lawrence), his clear plan to win back his wife gets complicated. To say this film is a mere romantic comedy is to do it a great disservice. It is sweet, yes, but also moving, heartbreaking and with bitingly funny scenes. The top-notch cast make this a must-see movie.

Bradley Cooper stars in David O. Russell's Silver Linings Playbook.

Your year ahead
You've been working hard for some time now, and this next year is no different. An upbeat cosmos creates a buzz around work and money, while your creativity dazzles all. If there's a project going, you'll be the obvious candidate. Even this year's challenges become blessings in disguise. The snag? You might attract more attention than you bargained for. As it is, you have a busy private life to contend with. Financially, invest in something solid - property, perhaps? Unexpected turns of events in relationships won't faze you either, as most will be to your advantage. Enjoy.

ARIES
(Mar 21 - Apr 20)

Find yourself an extra pair of hands, quick smart. You're probably needed in more than one place right now. Sure, it's great to feel wanted. But maybe you're being stretched in too many directions. The week reminds you why very few of us make it to sainthood. Finances suggest an exciting detour, as does a very close friend.
Best Day: Sunday 25th

TAURUS
(Apr 21 - May 20)

Taureans finally tackle the backlog of work and chores that have been piling up, but you're not propelled solely by the work ethic. A more likely motivation is your longing for luxury, which needs financing. You may, however, find yourself battling with someone in a position of power. Venus compensates by introducing an intriguing new friend.
Best Day: Monday 26th

GEMINI
(May 21 - Jun 21)

Love wins a generous time slot, though there may be some trickery in the heavens. This means that what started as a casual flirtation could become more than intended. And chances are, it'll be you who's doing the tempting. Indeed, prudence doesn't exactly spring to mind as your word of the week - "hedonistic" is closer to the mark. A beguiling time.
Best Day: Friday 30th

CANCER
(Jun 22 - Jul 22)

If money's been a constant battle, you'll love this week. The cosmos declares war on poverty-consciousness. Breathe a sigh of relief as well-deserved luxuries come well within reach. There is a catch, though. If something, or someone, instinctively feels too-good-to-be true, it probably is. Good judgement is the key.
Best Day: Sunday 25th

LEO
(Jul 23 - Aug 23)

Leos are the most vibrant and energetic of the zodiac signs. Ruled by the Sun, you radiate a warm, outgoing nature and rarely do anything by halves. You're a born leader; an initiator - someone who loves to act, to do, to bring about change. But this week too much relentless ambition could be your downfall - so slip into the shadows for a while.
Best Day: Wednesday 28th

LIBRA
(Sep 23 - Oct 23)

You may feel irritated with close friends or relatives this week. If they're leaning too heavily on you, you need to either hand them back some responsibility or recruit some outside support. You can't be all things to everyone. It's often said, "that time is the most valuable commodity." So spend wisely, Libra - on yourself.
Best Day: Saturday 31st

VIRGO
(Aug 24 - Sep 22)

You have an expert eye for quality and opportunity, although this week others may question your direction. Don't be dissuaded by their lack of vision. Sharp-witted Virgos can spot a winner that many would underestimate, be it personal or professional. So turn a silent ear to others' uninspired warnings, and listen to your own instincts.
Best Day: Monday 26th

SCORPIO
(Oct 24 - Nov 22)

This week brings you directly in touch with your need for action. You're ready to get things moving, perhaps even break new ground. On a psychological level, too, you're more in touch with your inner rage. It's how you channel this raw energy that makes all the difference. Release any pent-up emotions by taking positive, constructive action.
Best Day: Tuesday 27th

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov 23 - Dec 21)

Be very careful when dealing with your finances this week. Someone might be nursing a grudge and they're looking for some kind of pay-back. Still, there's no one quite like you to scoff in the face of adversity. Savvy Sagittarians can often turn misfortunes into a successful game. Better still, you may now find someone new to play with.
Best Day: Thursday 29th

CAPRICORN
(Dec 22 - Jan 20)

It's in your nature to save for a rainy day. Good news indeed at a time when the focus falls on money. Romance features just as strongly, so why not mix business with pleasure? This week suggests love that's attentive. Singles flirt; couples renew their passions. Friendships also grow, with established bonds becoming stronger
Best Day: Friday 30th

AQUARIUS
(Jan 21 - Feb 18)

You can be so hard on yourself, Aquarius - often giving out more love than you receive. Those who attach "conditions" to their friendships are easy enough to find. Take the next step - love those who think you are remarkable. Wake up each day happy with who you are. It's not all that difficult. Great love begins with yourself.
Best Day: Saturday 31st

PISCES
(Feb 19 - Mar 20)

What the world needs now is love, sweet love, and Pisceans everywhere are first in the romantic queue. But where to find that perfect mate? Think foreign and exotic. This week you may choose to experiment. Perhaps you're drawn to an irresistible out-of-towner, or possibly someone older? Couples should use this time to rekindle tepid passions.
Best Day: Tuesday 27th

New chopper for rescues

By Matthew Pearce

RACQ Capricorn Rescue felt the need for speed and its new AgustaWestland 139 helicopter certainly delivers.

The newest addition to the CapRescue fleet was unveiled at the RACQ Capricorn Rescue 25th Anniversary Ball on Friday 16 July, touching down at Rockhampton's Browne Park earlier in the day.

RACQ Capricorn Rescue executive director Mark Fewtrell said the new chopper was the culmination of a three-year project.

"This is a great day for us as the people of Central Queensland really do require their aeromedical services," he said.

"Our tasking is increasing every year, we've completed more than 100 tasks in the past 12 months and saved many lives."

Mr Fewtrell said the AgustaWestland 139 is far more advanced than the Bell 412 helicopter it would replace.

"The AW139 has a much larger range than the Bell, it can stay in the air for about three and a half hours without a refuel," he said.

"It's got a transit time that's about 20 to 25 per cent quicker than the Bell and travels about 50km an hour faster.

"Because of our tasking increase we're being required to go further and the capability of this helicopter allows us to bring a patient from Rockhampton straight through to one of the Brisbane hospitals."

Mr Fewtrell said the new aircraft's transit time to Emerald was under an hour compared to hour and 15 minutes in the Bell 412.

"Reducing the flight time by 15 minutes can mean the difference between life and death," he said.

"It's a more capable aircraft that's going to benefit all of Central Queensland including those in the boating community as well where we can get some of those offshore areas more easily.

"The cabin area is also much bigger and provides a lot more area for our medical team to work on the patients."

Mr Fewtrell said Queensland Health had greatly assisted with the cost of getting the helicopter to Central Queensland as well as the ongoing flying costs.

"RACQ CapRescue relies a lot on state government funding but there is a shortfall which is why we really appreciate the support of the community, including our sponsors, our volunteers and all those people who help us out in any way."

Patrick Norton, senior aircrew officer and check and trainer; Cameron Fewtrell, rescue crew officer; Jacob Moore, pilot and base manager and Heath Mastin, air crew officer, with RACQ Capricorn Rescue's AgustaWestland 139.

Aircrew officer Patrick Norton said the new aircraft would be a great advantage when advantage conducting medical retrievals.

"It gives us further range, greater speed and more power to conduct our job," he said.

"The larger cabin area allows a doctor and paramedic greater access to a patient in flight and it's very versatile, allowing us to reconfigure for search and rescue missions."

Mr Norton said while the aircraft had been used primarily for training so far, once the crew is fully trained it would be available immediately to start tasking.

"Cabin crew have completed up to 12 hours of front and rear flight training in order to convert from the Bell 412 to the new AW139," he said.

"Two days of ground theory was conducted involving aircraft systems, winch and front left seat procedures. Each crewman underwent several hours of simulation training prior to the arrival of the aircraft."

Mr Norton said the AW139 was a 'great leap forward' in technology.

"Our previous aircraft was very reliable as well, however this aircraft offers many advantages including more flight safety."

RACQ Capricorn Rescue's new AgustaWestland 139 helicopter touched down at Browne Park on 16 July.

Can you catch a winning barramundi?

The 2021 Fitzroy River Barra Bash, Australia's richest Barramundi fishing tournament is now open for registrations, with the tournament kicking off from 27 to 31 October 2021.

Anglers from around the country will compete across 3 days for their share of the $25,000 in guaranteed cash and prizes on offer. In addition to the Barramundi Tournament itself, this year's instalment sees the addition of the Family Fun Day and return of the Barra Bash Boat Raffle.

Frenchville Sports Club is proud to host this prestigious event for the fourth year and Club General Manager Damien Massingham said that the 2021 event was set to be bigger and better than ever.

"We are very privileged and thankful to have the support of the Queensland Government, the Rockhampton Regional Council and the Livingstone Shire Council for the event again this year," he said.

"Frenchville Sports Club hosts this event with the objective of benefiting our entire community through both increased economic and social benefits. Barra Bash continues to grow and bring a greater number of visitors to the region, while encouraging all age participation in healthy outdoor activities and maintaining a sustainable catch and release event. All these factors link to the Club's commitment to deliver over $1 million back into our community each year" Mr Massingham said.

A big scare in the air

This week CQ Today continues looking at cattleman Sir Graham McCamley's recollections from his book, Roads in the Sky.

In our 28th excerpt we look at a scare on a flight to the Northern Territory.

Graham's fleet of aircraft consisted of a Robinson R44 helicopter, a twin-engine Piper Comanche, a Cessna 206 and a Hughes Lighthwing.

By now he had already owned eleven planes and seven choppers and had accumulated 17,000 hours in the air.

The Turbo Twin Piper Comanche was fitted with STOL capabilities, radar and oxygen and had already clocked more than 4000 hours as Graham's primary mode of long distance transport over three decades.

Graham had flown all but 300 of the 4000 hours.

There came a time in the early 1990s when Shirley felt that Graham was going too much flying.

She knew his hours were way over his legal limit with his regular trips to the Territory, where he would fly up and back with a very quick turnaround.

Jenny persuaded Graham to put on another pilot. There was a good AOP (airline pilot) who was an instructor at the aero club, and fully instrument rated, so Graham hired her.

One time, they set off for Mt Bundy, near Adelaide River.

The pilot was in charge of the plane, Shirley was in the back and when they were halfway across the Territory, Graham was feeling relaxed enough to doze off. They had GPS and the pilot was fully instrument-rated after all.

Then the pilot said sharply: "I've got a blackout! There's been a blackout!"

Graham looked up. He groaned as he registered what happened.

"I couldn't believe it. she was flying at 14,000 feet. We'd come from Mt Isa and were halfway there and she had probably been flying 2-2 1/2 hours without oxygen, at 14,000 feet.

Graham McCamley with his twin-engine Piper Comanche.

"I thought she was only going to fly at 12,000 feet.

"Everything was still operating normally - the auto pilot was still on, still locked in - but I looked over and she'd switched the main switch off, because she was half silly from hypoxia, not having oxygen."

The pilot turned the main switch back on at once and the plane continued on its journey, but it was a lesson well learned.

Fortunately the lack of oxygen, or hypoxia, had not affected Graham, and he'd been able to assess the situation at once.

In the years to come there would be two more serious accidents involving aircraft. Both would change the McCamleys' live forever.

The last would draw together the threads of Graham's religious faith and turn his life around in a way he could never have envisioned.

We will read of these two crucial events in the coming weeks.

Sir Graham's book Roads in the Sky, is available for a generous donation to The Lady McCamley Memorial Foundation from his office at 87 Bolsover Street, Rockhampton or Georges Menswear in William Street, Rockhampton.

The Lady McCamley Memorial Foundation is an ATO registered charity whose focus is on suicide prevention. Receipts are issued for all donations received.

The foundation is run by a diverse board of dedicated volunteers united in a desire to support rural Queensland families.

Boaters urged to learn how to use radios

Marine radios are crucial pieces of safety equipment on all boats, yet many boat owners have never used their radio. Surprisingly, many people are not actually even sure how to use their radio!

Needless to say, this is not something you want to learn during a real emergency.

Your boat will have one (or more) of three types of radios fitted:

- A MF/HF transceiver
- A VHF transceiver
- A 27 MHz transceiver

If you have a MF/HF transceiver you probably know how to use your radio as this type of radio is not normally used by recreational boating enthusiasts.

We are also not going to talk about using a 27 MHz radio, but we are going to politely suggest you may want to consider moving to or adding a VHF radio if you are still relying on a 27MHz transceiver. This is because 27MHz radios have many limitations, the range is limited to line of sight and you may not receive important information broadcasts. Also be aware that larger boats do not monitor for emergency transmissions on this band, nor do Gladstone Volunteer Marine Rescue any longer.

Because of the many advantages of VHF radios and the fact that they are the most common marine radio used by boating enthusiasts with small boats, we will concentrate on this type of transceiver.

VHF radios are used to do two critical things:

- receive navigational warnings and weather updates
- communicate with other boats or marine rescue groups

Receiving navigational warnings and weather updates is easy. It is just a matter of turning your radio on, selecting the correct frequency, making sure your radio is working and then listening for broadcasts.

The correct frequency in this area is Channel 82. Weather reports are broadcast at 0640 and 1640 each day and any navigational warnings are broadcast as and when needed.

The best way of making sure your radio is working is with a radio check. Yes, that does mean getting on your radio and transmitting.

Many people skip this because they are nervous about talking on their radio or they simply don't know how to. We get it, using a radio and broadcasting to the world can seem daunting at first; but it's a lot less daunting than having an emergency at sea and discovering your radio doesn't work!

Getting a radio check really is easy.

Your boat will need a marine radio fitted.

All you have to do to get your local Marine Rescue base to confirm your radio is working is follow a few simple steps:

- Select channel 82
- Press the transmit button and say "VMR Gladstone, VMR Gladstone, VMR Gladstone, this is (say your boat name)."

Someone will quickly answer and confirm that they have received your transmission.

- Once they've stopped talking, simply ask them for a radio check.

They will answer you and tell you if they can hear you clearly, meanwhile you will be able to also tell if you can hear them clearly.

- If everyone can hear clearly a simple, "thank you," will do and you can be on your way knowing that your radio is working just fine.

It really is that simple and only takes 30 seconds.

In the next edition we'll talk a bit about using your radio for routine communication and emergencies. In the meantime though, as always if you have any questions about using your radio or anything else related to your boat, you can always contact Volunteer Marine Rescue Gladstone at : james.harris@mrq.org.au or www.vmr Gladstone.org.au

Bambusa ventricosa.

Bambusa multiplex Riviereorum.

Bamboo gains popularity

There are so many interesting gardens in Western Queensland, but to find gardens successfully growing tropical plants is more common than you think.

Four years ago I visited a very unique garden in the town of Blackall. This garden of Cindy and Ron Morgan contains an assortment of Bamboos of varying sizes that form a defining feature of their garden. By the book Bamboo is one of the world's most beautiful, fast growing and adaptable plants for a tropical garden but these plants should not grow in Outback Queensland. This week I had a chance to visit this garden again.

So on a freezing, 4 degree cold Wednesday morning I walked around this distinctive Bamboo garden with Cindy admiring the resilience of these plants. Cindy and Ron Morgan have successfully trailed Bamboo's in Blackall for eight years now and have found these plants to be relatively easy care.

With the growing popularity of Balinese-style gardens, Bamboo plants may be the waterwise solution for a tropical garden backdrop plant. Technically Bamboo is a grass which grows more rapidly than any other plant on the planet.

One of the biggest concerns that gardeners have when you mention the word 'Bamboo' is that you will have a plant that will take over the whole neighbourhood. In fact many of the early bamboos were invasive and a pest to the environment, but over the couple of decades, a lot of research, careful selection and effort by dedicated specialist nurseries has resulted in a range of non-invasive bamboo varieties being made available to the gardening community.

NOTE

- Bamboo enthusiasts use the term Culm, but what is it? A stem which is usually hollow except at the nodes or joints.
- Bamboo enthusiasts use the term Internodes, but what is it? Is a part or space between two nodes, knots, or joints, as the portion of a plant stem. between two nodes.

CINDY AND RON'S 6 OF THE BEST

Buddha's Belly or Bambusa ventricosa is very fast growing non-invasive small to medium Bamboo with a vigorous growth habit. The internodes swell out giving it the potbellied appearance that makes it so attractive. Grows well in poor soils, dry areas and is ideal for wind breaks or creek erosion. Buddha's Belly will form an excellent feature specimen, impenetrable hedging plant, or ornamental Bamboo in garden or container.

Chinese Goddess Bamboo or Bambusa multiplex Riviereorum is a small-sized clumper that is non-invasive and drought tolerant once it is established. This is a relatively low maintenance Bamboo, and is best cleaned up in early spring before it resumes active growth for the season. The solid culms and tiny delicate leaves emerge yellow in spring, turning light green in color the rest of the year.

Bambusa vulgaris cv. Vittata or Painted Bamboo.

Bambusa oldhamii.

Malay Dwarf or Bambusa heterostachya variegated is a moderate size bamboo with a mildly arching form and a clean and green look. It has abundant leaves at the top of the plant which may become sparse around the lower areas as it ages, revealing motley yellow/green culms. A frost tolerant Bamboo that is suitable for hedging or for ornamental or container use.

Oldham's Bamboo or Bambusa oldhamii is a large and fast growing clumping bamboo that features really straight culms and dense dark green foliage. The dense foliage of Oldham's Bamboo is particularly useful as a privacy screen, especially for second story windows where the foliage is at the densest. This super hardy upright bamboo has useable timber and shoots can be eaten but is best planted in large gardens.

Painted Bamboo or Bambusa vulgaris cv. Vittata is a tall growing frost tolerant that is regarded as one of the worlds most cultivated ornamental Bamboos. The showy gold colored culms with what looks like painted lime green stripes become a feature in most garden situations. The Painted Bamboo looks good as a potted plant, a hedge, or as an ornamental feature.

Timor Black Bamboo or Bambusa lako is a medium size clumping black Bamboo that grows well in rich moist soil. Culms start green and turn glossy black within months. When mature the culms are glossy black culms with dark green stripes. It is best suited to warm sheltered sites away from the cold and is frost and wind tolerant

Increased cattle at CQLX

CQLX Gracemere agents had an increased yarding of 3,287 head on Wednesday 14 July, comprising of 1655 steers, 1158 heifers, 331 cows and 143 bulls.

The yarding was drawn from all areas across Central Queensland and the quality was generally very good. All processors were present, however not all operated.

Prices still increased for slaughter cattle and steers generally improved throughout the sale with heifers varying relative to the quality on offer.

Check facts on reef

By AgForce Reef Taskforce chair Alex Stubbs

We've all heard of the boy who cried wolf, but what about the Minister who cried Reef?

For years now the State Government has told all who will listen that agricultural runoff is destroying the Great Barrier Reef - despite the fact that the science behind this call is outdated and false.

Over and over the Department of Environment and Science has attacked our farming community, spouting propaganda from green groups and a handful of cherry-picked scientists.

All the while AgForce and industry have been forced to defend themselves, while fighting a raft of new Reef regulations crippling livelihoods.

To her credit, Environment and Great Barrier Reef Minister Meaghan Scanlon navigated through some very sensible amendments to the expanded cropping regulations at the start of her term, but there is still a long way to go.

And now the 'wolf' has arrived.

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO) and World Heritage Committee (WHC) are heeding Government claims about threats to the Reef and considering an 'in danger' listing.

It's prompted Federal Environment Minister Sussan Ley to present UNESCO ambassadors with new, validated Reef facts – observations by expert, unbiased marine scientists, which indicate the Reef is in good health and recovering from previous weather conditions.

Five years of applied Reef science from the National Environmental Science Program Tropical Water Quality Hub (NESP-TWQ) also indicates the 2017 Reef Scientific Consensus Statement is outdated - rising ocean temperatures are the biggest threat to the Reef, not fertiliser, pesticide or sediment runoff from agriculture.

The game has changed.

As the old fable goes, when the shepherd boy really did see a wolf coming for his flock, he called for help but nobody came. So will the same ring true in this instance?

AgForce has long since questioned whether the Reef is really in danger or if there are other motivations behind the Government's cries.

This new chapter in the story of The Minister who Cried Reef gives us a moment to pause, check the quality of Reef science one more time, and again lobby for a national Office of Science Quality Assurance (OSQA) to check the validity of the science underpinning government policy.

Then and only then will we be able to believe the Government is telling us the truth next time the Minister cries Reef.

Gladstone Valley Funerals & Cremation Services

Since the cessation of the printing of our daily local newspaper, I think we have all become very aware of the need for Gladstone to have its own newspaper. It has become evident that people wish to be informed of what is happening in our community and this includes, who has passed away.

When our paper ceased to publish, Gladstone Valley Funerals took immediate steps to place funeral and death notices on our web page, and have had a notice board placed in our grounds. Both of these have been used extensively by the public, however, we are now delighted that Gladstone Today will be published, and therefore our notices can be seen by all, once again.

In a bid to support Gladstone Today, and keep a local newspaper in our town, I am happy to announce that Gladstone Valley Funerals will offer our families a death notice, free of charge, in our new paper. Gladstone Valley Funerals – your local Funeral Home.

Fishing

with Hooked Fishing Charters

Hooking a fantastic catch

There was plenty of action over the last couple of weekends on board with Hooked Fishing Charters.

From adults to kids all were eager to pull in the biggest catch they possibly could.

Hooked Fishing continued its great school holiday program called Fish N Fun which encourages kids to pick up a rod under the supervision of the Hooked Fishing crew.

In the deeper waters there was plenty of action too with big fishing being snapped up by the clients of Hooked Fishing.

The Causeway Lake was filled with plenty of fish for Hooked Fishing's Fish N Fun program.

Super soccer spectacular

By Liam Emerton

The Terry Kennedy Cup was held on Sunday with the best young soccer players flocking to Ryan Park for a day full of action.

The under 10s carnival hosted teams from Rockhampton, Gladstone, Banana Shire and Livingstone Shire regions with close to 40 matches being played across the day.

Eventually the competition was won by Central Skippers which took out the competition with a 2-1 win over a very tough Biloela side.

More results and a full wrap will be included in Thursday's edition of CQ Today and Gladstone Today.

Bragging rights up for grabs in a hot Derby day classic

By Liam Emerton

The AFL Capricornia competition will host its third and final Gladstone derby this weekend with the men's sides eager to get the better of their opposition.

The Gladstone Suns and Boyne Island Tannum Sands Saints have clashed twice this season, the teams split the games one win a piece.

Gladstone had the upper hand in the first match, before the Saints soared back level after a win in the middle of the season.

Now approaching the end of the comp BITS will need to find its feet ahead of a likely finals appearance.

After defeating third placed Glenmore Bulls are looking good against the Brothers Kangaroos, and the Saints will be ready for the Suns.

In the women's competition, the Gladstone Suns are hunting for retribution having lost both all-Gladstone matches this season. Neither Gladstone team will make finals so this match could potentially be their last chance for a big win.

The AFL Capricornia women's competition also produced a mighty surprise thanks to the Yeppoon Swans.

The Yeppoon squad battled the undefeated and ladder leader Glenmore Bulls at Swan Park on Saturday.

A surprising win for the Swans, dashing away with a 6.6 (42) - 2.1 (13) victory over the Bulls.

With that momentum in mind, the Yep-

BITS Saints will be eager to defeat their local rivals this weekend.

poon side's next challenge will be against the Rockhampton Panthers which sit just four points above them.

If the Swans maintain their winning form, which has seen them score two consecutive victories, they could find themselves up to second place in one week.

The Brothers Kangaroos are on 28 points, the same as the Panthers, and with finals approaching they will want to maintain a hold on second spot.

The Kangaroos will have to do plenty of work if they are to maintain their position as they face the Bulls this weekend, who will more than likely be fired up after their shock defeat.

If the Brothers lose to Glenmore they will drop to at least third place, but that depends on the Yeppoon and Rockhampton battle. The two contests will be crucial for finals in just a couple of weeks.

In the men's competition, the Brothers Kangaroos managed to hold on against the BITS Saints.

Brothers won 9.8 (62) to 9.2 (56) and will now face local rivals, the Glenmore Bulls.

The Bulls will be eager to get back to business having suffered two consecutive losses for the first time this season.

The Rockhampton Panthers won the last match against the Gladstone Suns.

The Yeppoon Swans will look to lockdown another minor premiership this weekend against the Panthers. A win will make them uncatchable for the remainder of the regular season.

Brothers bolt to the top

By Liam Emerton

After the senior Gladstone Rugby League competition was marred in controversy this week due to a racial incident (see page 1 and 3 for the report), this week's focus will hopefully return to the field.

The Gladstone Brothers have taken hold of the competition once again following a great win against the Valley Diehards 30-8. Brothers' winger Lachlan Ghee topped the scoring with a double.

The side now sits two points clear of the Diehards, as it looks to gain more traction when it takes on the Tannum Sands Seagulls this weekend.

The Seagulls defeated the Wallabys 56-6 in the last game before the Gladstone side rightfully walked off the field due to an off-field racial incident.

Prior to that, Tannum Sands were brilliant with Jake Gehrman scoring a hattrick from his halfback position.

Gehrman also nailed eight conversion attempts on his side's path to victory.

Their performance now sets up an intriguing battle between two of the best halves in the competition this weekend.

The team's last fixture finished with the Brothers winning 62-12 but Tannum Sands will be out for vengeance.

The Gladstone Wallabys will refocus its attention on the Valley Diehards in the upcoming round.

The Diehards were in supreme form before being knocked off by the Brothers and will look to keep the pressure on the league leaders with a win. The Wallabys and Diehards last played out a match which ended 40-4 in favour of the Valleys, something the side in blue and white will look to repeat.

In the Rockhampton Rugby League women's competition it was a tough week for our local teams.

down 42-0 to Rockhampton Brothers, while the Gladstone Wallabys were dismantled 76-4 by the Blackwater Crushettes.

The Seagulls' next match will come against the North Chargers in Gladstone, giving our local side a distinct advantage.

Last time out Tannum Sands managed a 22-4 win over the Chargers and will be hoping to repeat that feat this weekend.

The Wallabys will also play on home soil when it takes on the intimidating Emu Park Emus. The Emus were defeated 14-0 last round in a shocker to Yeppoon and will be want to bounce back against the Wallabys.

In the other women's matches, Blackwater will travel to Salesyard Park to face the Fitzroy/Gracemere Sharks, while Yeppoon and Brothers clash at Webb Park.

Netball on the rise following new league's success

By Liam Emerton

The Central Premier League (CPL) Netball competition is a terrific concept turned success story.

After Netball Queensland pulled out of hosting Queensland Premier League competitions, which our senior Capricorn Claws team played in, a group of Central Queensland Netball Associations banded together to create the CPL.

Gladstone joined the league with three teams, two under 17s and one open's squad and other associations including Capricornia Coast, Rockhampton, Bundaberg, Blackwater, Emerald and Biloela all competed in the under 17s and open competitions.

The CPL was hosted across two carnivals, the first held in Bundaberg and the second and final carnival was hosted on Saturday and Sunday in Yeppoon.

Unfortunately after a tough battle on court, Gladstone's teams were unable to make the grand final. Capricorn Coast Netball Association took out both the under 17s and open CPL trophies.

The under 17s side defeated Emerald 42-37 in a tight grand final before the open ladies took down Bundy 55-42 in their big dance.

Capricorn Coast Netball Association Administrator, Katrina Whitham, who helped maintain and organise the CPL competition, said overall it was a terrific league and a strong step in the right direction.

"Deb Eastlake who is a netball representative in Townsville for our region helped us get this competition going," she said.

"So between every association in that region, we started the Central Premier League.

"We had a competition for Open ladies, under 17s and a mixed comp. Sadly the mixed comp didn't take off this year but we will be pushing it next year.

"We did these ages because we find there's a gap between stage age, which stops at 15s, and there's nothing from the age group between 15s and 17s and now there's nothing for our open ladies either.

"But because the quarters are 15 minutes it can be hard to back up for our more mature ladies, especially in the hot sun. And that's why we made sure you only play two games per day.

"I've had great feedback so far. Overall the way we set it up this year was pretty good."

Moving forward with the competition, Whitham said it would be great to see it expand with more associations nominating teams.

"We did have Hervey Bay but they withdrew a week before the Bundaberg carnival and hopefully we can get some more associations on board," she said.

"Emerald did bring an under 17s team in but didn't have an open team, Rocky had open teams but didn't have an under 17s. Bilo had an under 17s but no opens.

"So hopefully we can get some more teams from the associations, that'd be great.

"Hopefully we can move it indoors for the ladies one year but that depends on finances."

Samarah Belton receives a pass.

On the track with Tony

By Rockhampton Jockey Club CEO Tony Fenlon

G'day this is Tony.

I have always been a believer in following horses when they head back south after they have raced at the Rocky Carnival.

I can't just put my finger on it but for some reason, over the years they always seem to improve and benefit from the trip north.

Veteran horsemen and trainers have long held the belief that travelling horses has many benefits.

The saying "beware of the travelling horse" comes to mind.

I suppose it is the same for humans, if you travel away, you usually reek the benefits of the experience.

Anyhow, having raised those points a few horses fit that category at Brisbane's Doomben races this coming Saturday, July 24.

First and foremost is the Rockhampton Cup winner Regal Stage.

Much has been written about this $1.8 million yearling purchase trained by Sydney's Gai

Waterhouse and Adrian Bott.

What hasn't been written is that Regal Stage is a full brother to the retired multiple GR 1 winning racehorse Lankan Rupee.

That son of Redoute's Choice and the Stravinsky mare Estelle Collection was a star of his era about six years ago collecting over $4.1 million in prize money.

Little wonder little brother Regal Stage cost $1.8 million as a yearling.

Anyhow, I see where Regal Stage has been entered for a very suitable BM 85 (1600m) at Doomben on Saturday and handicapped on 59.5kg.

Regal Stage looked good in winning the Rocky Cup second-up and will be improved by the effort fitness wise.

He certainly has been a traveller as from his Randwick training base he has wandered all over the countryside collecting Cup races.

Firstly, the Snake Gully Cup at Gundagai and then the Mudgee Cup.

Later he lobbied in Brisbane before floating it north to Rocky.

I reckon he will be very hard to beat at Doomben on Saturday.

Leading Brisbane trainer Tony Gollan brought his well-performed mare Really Discreet north to Rockhampton for the $100K Newmarket Handicap (1300m) just over 10 days ago.

Really Discreet put in a game effort to finish a handy fourth in the feature Rockhampton Jockey Club sprint.

I see where Tony has Really Discreet set to race in a suitable Fillies and Mares Cl 6 (1350m) on Saturday's Doomben card. I think she is really well placed and I am being far from discreet in tipping Really Discreet to win the race.

Our local lass Better Reflection trained at Callaghan Park by John "Wiggo" Wigginton is also nominated for the same race as Really Discreet, which is unfortunate from my perspective.

By that I means, I will have to make a choice and I like both the mares.

The second-up run from Better Reflection at this Sunshine Coast on a soft track on July 11 was excellent.

Brad Stewart had her ideally placed close to the fence after leaving a very wide gate in the $105K Provincial Sprint Final (1200m).

The effort of Better Reflection to finish just 1.7 lengths behind Derulo and end up fifth of 13 points to her being ready to win again. Better Reflection is in a pretty hot field again on Saturday but is certainly worth an each-way wager should she draw well.

So, there I have handed out two for quinella players or exotic backers – Really Discreet and Better Reflection.

The other horse who fits the north back to south mould on Saturday at Doomben is the Tom Bourke Sunshine Coast trained Rocky Carnival winner Better Than Groovy.

Better Than Groovy will be at big odds in the C & G Class 6 (1350m) but it's worth a tote ticket.

As is said you have got to be in it to win it. Good Luck.

Power ready to surge after shaking down the Thunder

By Liam Emerton

The Port City Power and Breakers will play their final home game of the 2021 season this weekend and will be hoping to pick up a win for the loud and proud crowd.

Having picked up their second win of the season and finishing a tough triple-header road trip the Power will be buzzing to be back in Kev Broome Stadium.

Power defeated the Logan Thunder 77-69 to push into sixth position on the Queensland State League (QSL) table.

It was the perfect response from Gladstone's basketball team who had suffered a disappointing loss to Toowoomba the day before and it was made even more special by Mitch Knight's 30 piece.

Knight knocked down 11 shots from 26 and pulled down a ridiculous 19 boards in a huge double-double performance.

His brother, Ben Knight, also snatched 14 points while Dylan Owen grabbed a double-double with 12 points and 10 rebounds.

The all-around team performance was impressive and could build to the side earning its third victory this weekend.

Power will take on the tough task of beating the Gold Coast Rollers in the final game at Kev Broome Stadium.

The Rollers sit third in the men's QSL competition having lost just three times this season.

The roaring home crowd will be fully behind our lads as they take to the court one last time for 2021.

The women's contest will be the opener to that match and after a disappointing road trip, the side will look to jump back into the winner's circle.

The best points scorers on the road were Savannah Au (39), Daila Walker (33) and Ka-dee Barrenger (30) who combined for 102 points in three hard-fought games.

Those three stars will need to produce a strong performance against the Rollers to sneak above the Toowoomba side which now sit above the Breakers on the QSL table.

The women's contest will tip things off starting at 6pm on Saturday before the men's match, which is scheduled for 8pm.

Mitch Knight will return to Gladstone with confidence under his belt after dropping 30 points on the Logan Thunder.

Skye's amazing 11

By Liam Emerton

Clinton FC's Central Queensland Premier League women's squad has become a demolition crew with a 21-1 victory over Bluebirds United Blue.

The team in green scored eight goals in the first half before ramping up the pressure and managing 13 goals in the second period.

From those 21 goals star striker and Clinton captain, Skye Alexander, scored a ludicrous 11 goals to help her shoot to the top of the scoring charts.

Alexander's amazing display overshadowed her teammate Georgia Muir's performance who scored a double hat-trick.

Liana Radisic and Ally Ware rounded off the scoring for Clinton, each notching up a brace.

This week will prove the ultimate test for Clinton, as the team prepares to play three games in five days due to catch-ups being re-scheduled.

The game against the Gracemere Redbacks should be the most achievable game of the three, before heading to Webber Park on Sunday to play the second-placed Bluebirds United White.

The third match is on Wednesday, facing the league leaders Central FC.

Central FC was incredibly brave in its Kappa Cup quarter-final against Townsville Brothers, ultimately going down 5-0.

The top side of the women's CQPL will return to the local competition this week to first battle Frenchville Roos, before heading into that aforementioned battle against Clinton.

In other women's matches, Bluebirds United Blue will take on its fellow Bluebirds United White's team in a club derby, and Capricorn Coast Eagles will take on Nerimbera in the battle of the birds.

In the men's CQPL Clinton had a rough night against the now table-topping Frenchville Roos, losing 6-1.

Central FC's ladies will be looking to rip back into the CQPL this weekend.

After slipping to third place, the Clinton men will be looking for a big comeback when it faces Bluebirds United this weekend.

Central FC men's team will return to action against strong opposition after a week off.

Central takes on the might of Frenchville with the Gladstone team hoping to repeat its last performance against the Roos.

The last meeting saw Central pick up a somewhat surprising 2-1 victory over the Roos. A similar result this weekend could see Central push hard for a top-three position.

The other men's match will feature Nerimbera Magpies clashing with Capricorn Coast Eagles, with both our Gladstone-based teams hoping for another Magpies miracle.

Three teams eyeing off a second chance

By Liam Emerton

There's set to be one huge A-Grade clash this weekend in the Rugby Capricornia competition's final stage of the round-robin series. All eyes will be on the mouthwatering match between the Gladstone Goats and the Colts Rugby Club.

Gladstone and Colts last played out a match in round nine of the regular season with the Goats getting the upper hand with a 13-0 victory at Marley Brown Oval.

There's a lot of implications for the finals series depending on the result of this week's Goats and Colts game.

The GRUFCs sit in second spot but are tied on a point differential with the Frenchville Pioneers who sit behind them by a total of 26 plus/minus points.

Sitting in fourth position on the A-Grade table is the Colts but the side from North Rockhampton is just two competition points behind the Goats and Pioneers.

That means a win for the Colts will ensure at least third position with a possibility of ending up in second.

The Goats will likely wrap up second position with a win against the Colts but could still fall into third if the Pioneers pull off a massive win against the Dawson Valley Drovers.

The race for second position is critical as it hands the team that finishes in the runners-up position two chances of making the grand final.

The team in second will play the Dawson Valley Drovers in the first qualifying final, with the winner of that match going on to the grand final.

The loser of the qualifying final will face the winner of the elimination final, which is fought out between the third and fourth-placed teams.

That means both the Colts and Gladstone will be eager to pick up a win this weekend to secure a guaranteed second chance.

The Pioneers will also be keen to score an upset victory over the Dawson Valley Drovers and potentially sneak into second position.

The Frenchville side is flying too, having defeated Gladstone in round two of the round-

The Gladstone Goats will be out to secure second place this weekend.

robin 24-14 and having seen the Colts, who they defeated two matches ago, drawing with the Drovers 24-24.

In reserve's grade, the finals series will be intriguing with the one spot set in stone.

Brothers have already secured its place in the qualifying final but with Bilo just four points behind the Crocs, both sides have the potential of finishing in second place.

The two top sides in reserve grade will play each other in the first round with the loser of that match to play third place in the second qualifying final.

That means, similarly to A-Grade, if Biloela finds a way to beat Brothers it will have a second chance and will face them once again in the qualifying final.

All matches are scheduled for Victoria Park this weekend.

The Colts are looking to rise above Gladstone Goats and Frenchville Pioneers.

The Meteors men's CQHL team are now the league leaders.

Meteors on another planet

By Liam Emerton

The Meteors and Sparks collided in a terrific contest in round 13 of the Central Queensland Hockey League (CQHL).

The Meteors men ended up running away with the contest, securing a 9-0 win, which took them to the top of the men's table.

It comes as the Wanderers had a 3-3 draw against the Southern Suburbs, allowing the Meteors to capitalise and become the new league leaders.

But the side will be in for a tough challenge when it comes face to face with the Southern Suburbs.

The team's riding on a high after drawing with the Wanderers, posing an intense battle for the fresh table-toppers.

When the sides last clashed Southern Suburbs came out on top with a 6-5 win, while the match prior seeing a Meteor win of 4-0.

The match at Kalka Shades Hockey Complex will make a huge impact with only two games to go in the home and away series before finals begin.

In the other men's CQHL, the Sparks team is out for a rebound against a tough Park Avenue side.

Sparks is yet to score a win this season but have been progressively building towards a maiden victory.

In the women's CQHL, the Sparks scored a derby day 2-0 win over the Meteors which pushed the latter down to third place on the table.

The Sparks' big result also jumped the side up one spot into fourth position.

The final Gladstone-based side the Souths, was extremely unlucky not to walk away with a point against the competition's top team after losing 2-1 to the Wanderers.

Souths will have a chance to pick up its second win of the season facing Frenchville this week.

If the Gladstone side plays anything like it did against Wanderers, it will certainly be able to double its 2021 win tally.

A momentum-boosted Sparks side will clash with the league leading Wanderers this round in hopes of causing a minor upset.

In the last match of the CQHL, the Meteors will battle Southern Suburbs in a clash between second and third.

Meteors will have the chance to leapfrog its opponents with a win and take over second position.

The Meteors will be planning to stay on top of the table.

Challenge Cup a classic

By Liam Emerton

The Challenge Cup was held at St Brendan's College on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday with plenty of Gladstone schools entering the competition.

Eventually the path of two schools - St John the Baptist Catholic Primary School and Star of the Sea Catholic Primary School - matched them against each other for the Challenge Cup Rugby League Plate final.

After a back-and-forth contest it was St John's that took out the victory 20-18 and celebrated with pure elation.

Gladstone Today's camera was on hand to capture the special moment as St John's walked away with an impressive win.

Central collect the Kennedy Cup

By Liam Emerton

The Central Skippers were being cheered from the stands as they walked onto Ryan Park for the grand final of the Terry Kennedy Cup.

The excitement built for the under 10s squad who came up against an incredibly determined Biloela Valley Strikers team.

Central had beaten fellow Gladstone-based team Clinton FC to make the final, while Bilo knocked out Emerald in their semi-final in an intense penalty shootout.

With the stage set on Sunday afternoon, Central made the most of its chances and took out the coveted Terry Kennedy Cup with a brilliant 2-1 win.

Bilo kept its heads high as the side earned the runners-up medal, but it was the Central team who celebrated on the way back to Gladstone.

Capras cracking the code

By Liam Emerton

The Central Queensland Capras have the monkey off their back and can thank the great crowd at Marley Brown Oval for their tremendous support.

The crowd were celebrating early as Capras' winger Cooper Marshall crossed in the 14th minute to give his side the lead.

The Tigers' next try was then matched by captain Jack Madden who scored a simplistic try to once again put the Capras into the lead.

But after another Brisbane try, our Intrust Super Cup squad were down 16-12 at half time.

Then the home side stormed back in the second half, despite losing Nathan Bassani due to a send off.

Fullback Blake Moore was crucial, scoring a try and setting up another to send the Capras back to Rockhampton with its first win.

Jack Pattie's solo try, in which he grubbered through the line and recovered it himself, showed the amazing effort of the team and sealed the score as 30-22.

The victory has pushed the Capras up the ladder and above the Mackay Cutters.

This weekend the CQ Capras will have another tough task in the form of the Redcliffe Dolphins.

The Capras pushed Redcliffe to the limit back in round three, leading the contest 16-4 at half time before losing 24-22 thanks to a 78th minute penalty goal.

With their second half display at Marley Brown Oval at the top of everyone's minds, there's hope the Capras will once again outperform their opponent and double their win tally.

The confidence off the back of that terrific display could potentially set the Capras for a monumental game against the ever-dangerous Redcliffe Dolphins.

A win against the Dolphins would rock the competition and possibly send the Capras up to 11th position, depending on other results.

The contest has been rescheduled to Rugby

Park in Rockhampton and it's set to be an absolute cracker.

In other Capras' news, captain Jack Madden signed a one-year contract extension.

The contract will keep the halfback at the club until the end of next season and is great news for 2022 Capras coach Lionel Harbin.

"I'm very pleased he's signed on for 2022. I think Jack has been playing really well," said coach Harbin via the Capras Facebook page.

"He brings a lot of experience to the squad at this level and I'm looking forward to having his leadership within the playing group."

For our under 21s, Hasting Deering Colts will have a week off and will not return until next weekend.
