Signage is switched off

Gladstone resident Sharie Kendrick has voiced her disappointment over the lack of signage at Tondoon Botanic Gardens as council endeavours to complete major electrical upgrades.

The initial stage of the Electrical Upgrade Project commenced in December 2020 and was completed prior to 30 June 2021. The upgrades have caused some residents difficulty navigating the gardens due to a lack of signage and information at the construction site.

A sweet revival

By Ellish Massie

A 100-year-old cordial factory in Gladstone's CBD has been given new life, with the facility soon to be transformed into a brewery.

Gladstone businessman Michael Comley has paid homage to the city's past by reopening Ward's Brewery on Auckland Street.

Originally known as Ward's Cordial, the factory was originally owned by the Ward family who developed it into a cordial and brewery factory in 1922.

Flash forward to the 1980s, the property was occupied by Budget Rent A Car, who Mr Comley's sister, Michelle, runs.

With Budget now operating in Callemondah, Mr Comley said he was working with his sister to bring his vision of a brewery in the latter half of 2022.

After securing development approval from Gladstone Regional Council in March 2020, construction had started on rejuvenating a classic Queensland cordial factory and its brand.

"The relocation of Budget presented an opportunity to asset manage the old Cordial Factory and after much consideration we decided to follow the route of what the building was kept for, drinks production," Mr Comley said.

Mr Comley said transforming Ward's Cordial to Ward's Brewery was an obvious choice.

He said his vision was for Gladstone to 'own it'.

"I really want Gladstone to own it. I want people to feel it's their brewery," he said.

"The brand is genuinely Gladstone.

"It's fun and captures with a slight USA craft beer influence and celebrates memories of yesteryears."

The editor's desk

Walking around the supermarket this week almost felt like we are living in a post-apocalyptic society.

It was a repeat of what we saw in 2020 when the initial panic of covid hit the streets and shelves were bare although panic buying wasn't entirely to blame this time.

The empty shelves were a result of the flooding in Gympie and the surge in Covid-19 cases resulting in supermarket workers to isolate, is what staff told me when I was doing my weekly shop.

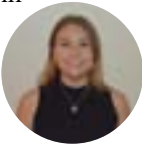

Supply trucks were stuck on the Bruce Highway as they couldn't get past the floods.

I think we'll begin to see shelves filling up again later in the week... hopefully.

I know I'm prayer as I don't think I could eat another vegetable Bolognese with ingredients found in the pantry.

On the bright side it was the cheapest grocery shop ever.

The concept for Ward's Brewery.

New brewery to open in city's CBD

By Eilish Massie

Gladstone will soon have its very own brewery, thanks to a creative dream from Gladstone businessman Michael Comley.

Mr Comley has paid homage to the city's past by reopening Ward's Brewery on Auckland Street.

Originally known as Ward's Cordial, the factory was originally owned by the Ward family who developed it into a cordial and brewery factory in 1922.

Flash forward to the 1980s, the property was occupied by Budget Rent A Car, who Mr Comley's sister, Michelle, runs.

With Budget now operating in Callemondah, Mr Comley said he was working with his sister to bring his vision of a brewery in the latter half of 2022.

After securing development approval from Gladstone Regional Council in March 2020, construction had started on rejuvenating a classic Queensland cordial factory and its brand.

"The relocation of Budget presented an opportunity to asset manage the old Cordial Factory and after much consideration we decided to follow the route of what the building was kept for, drinks production," Mr Comley said.

Mr Comley said transforming Ward's Cordial to Ward's Brewery was an obvious choice.

He said his vision was for Gladstone to 'own it'.

"I really want Gladstone to own it. I want people to feel it's their brewery," he said.

"The brand is genuinely Gladstone.

Ward's Brewery logo.

"It's fun and captures with a slight USA craft beer influence and celebrates memories of yesteryears."

Mr Comley said the brewery would have a 'BrewPub' concept, with freshly brewed brew and served food that complemented its beverages.

"Developing the concept, brand and sorting the buildings has been great fun," he said.

"We are very keen to make Ward's Brewery something Gladstone locals can be proud of and show to their friends and family when visiting.

"It's fun, it's communicative, it's community, it's food, it's drink and it will be very cool in Gladstone."

Water project roles

Gladstone Area Water Board (GAWB) has appointed Tell Advisory and SMEC into advisory roles to support the delivery of Fitzroy to Gladstone Pipeline project pre-construction activities.

Tell Advisory has successfully been appointed as the Transaction Advisor and SMEC as the Owner's Engineer following competitive tender processes between late-September and late-October 2021.

GAWB Chief Executive Officer Darren Barlow said forming a strong project team was key to delivering on project objectives outlined by the Department of Regional Development, Manufacturing and Water.

"As the delivery authority for Fitzroy to Gladstone Pipeline pre-construction activities, we're focused on the goal of getting this important project in a position to immediately start major on-site works as soon as construction of the pipeline is approved by the Queensland Government," Mr Barlow said.

"A critical part of this is having the right people on the job and working collaboratively to support a seamless transition to potential construction.

"While the Department is finalising investigations to determine the full scope of the pipeline, we're committed to engaging with Tell Advisory, SMEC and our entire project team to strongly position the Department to quickly respond to the region's water security risks if drought conditions continue in 2022."

The Department appointed GAWB as the delivery management proponent for pre-construction activities for the Fitzroy to Gladstone Pipeline project, which is an option under consideration to enable long-term water security for urban and industrial customers of GAWB.

It has the potential to provide water security and, importantly, provide water for the emerging hydrogen industry in the Gladstone region. A decision will be made by the Queensland Government on whether to proceed to construction of the pipeline during 2022.

Millions for GPC wharf upgrade

A Central Queensland business has been awarded a multi-million dollar contract, to complete a fender upgrade at Gladstone Ports Corporation's (GPC) oldest wharf.

The project, which will be completed by local marine contractor Joseph Engineering Pty Ltd, will support job growth in the region, while future-proofing the Auckland Point Wharf 1.

The six-million dollar upgrade, which is set to begin this month, aims to future-proof one of Gladstone's oldest wharves and improve berthing for vessels, by modernising the existing timber fender system.

The works will include new marine pylons, buffer and securing equipment to replace the old structure and extend the life of the Auckland Point wharves.

Once complete the wharf will be able to handle larger cruise vessels to visit Gladstone in the future, along with potential Roll on, Roll Off cargo vessels for the import of vehicles.

Chief Operating Officer Craig Walker said the upgrade was vital for economic growth in the region and will sustain GPC's operations.

"Joseph Engineering has worked with GPC over many years delivering some fantastic outcomes. It shows the capability we have here in this internationally recognised port," Mr Walker said.

"We will soon be able to welcome larger vessels to our Auckland Point facility to import and export commodities such as, general cargo, roll on roll off equipment, agriculture, containers and bulk liquids well into the future," he said.

"The facility has been operating since the 1920's when horses and cattle were exported even before coal."

"It's an exciting development for the port and it is humbling to see the facility's history will live on with the new upgrades."

Member for Gladstone and the Minister for Regional Development and Manufacturing, Minister for Water, Glenn Butcher, said the multi-million dollar project is more evidence of the Palaszczuk Government investing in Queensland's future.

"The project will support local jobs including up to 20 jobs through Joseph Engineering and dozens more with local suppliers making the piles, fender frames and fenders," he said.

"This wharf is one of the many jewels in Gladstone's crown, so it's great to see the upgrade underway."

Works scheduled to be complete mid-2022.

Animal shelter desperate for support

By Eilish Massie

A series of misfortunate events has led to one Gladstone animal rescue group not taking on any more animals.

CQ Animal Army Inc. is in desperate need for financial support after several rescue call outs led to a momentous vet bill, resulting in the shelter refusing additional animals.

Cat coordinator Sam Featherstone said it was the first time the shelter has run into financial trouble.

The shelter, which has run for the past two years, relies on small donations from the public.

"Every animal gets a chance," she said.

"In the past six months we had cats coming in with cat flu that spread around with the other cats in care, we had some come in with ringworm, and then we took on a cat who was bitten by a brown snake and was pregnant at the time.

"One dog alone has cost us over $4000 alone in training and rehabilitation to make him rehomingable.

"It's draining us. We're a tiny rescue with maybe 15 people involved."

Currently more than 30 animals are in foster care.

The group hopes to raise more than $4000 to help get them back on their feet.

"At the moment we aren't taking on anymore just because we have to get on top of our vet bills and look after the animals we have got."

Ms Featherstone said Betty White's recent passing inspired the group to ask for help from the community.

"Unfortunately with her passing, it just was a reminder to help out our local animal shelter," she said.

"We're hoping the community could come together on Betty White's 100th birthday.

"Please consider honoring Betty White with a donation to us and help save countless lives. We once again pledge to you, our community, to continue to work tirelessly and save as many lives as we can."

If you would like to donate, you can directly donate to CQ Animal Army via Boyne Vets or through to the shelter itself.

The Gladstone suburbs with the most infections

By Eilish Massie

According to weekly Queensland Government statistics, New Auckland and Clinton have recorded the most cases of Covid-19 infections in the region.

The suburbs recorded 25 for their SA2, a statistical division which represents small groups of suburbs.

Since January 1, Boyne Island and Tannum Sands have recorded 17 cases, Gladstone five cases, Telina and Toolooa recorded eight cases, West Gladstone recorded four, Agnes Water and Miriam Vale at five cases, Gladstone Hinterland recorded two cases and Kin Kora and Sun Valley recorded two cases.

Contrast this to an SA4 which represents entire regions, such as Central Queensland, Wide Bay and Mackay Isaac Whitsunday.

Four cases are contacts of a confirmed case or a known cluster.

One is locally acquired but the contact isn't identified.

All other cases since New Year's Day are under investigation.

To avoid the spread of Covid-19 it is important to follow the latest health advice which is available on the Queensland Government Health website.

Libs eye Gladstone

By Eilish Massie

Outgoing Federal Flynn MP Ken O'Dowd has thrown his support behind the Liberal Party ahead of the upcoming election.

Mr O'Dowd joined Deputy Prime Minister Barnaby Joyce, Senator Matt Canavan and LNP candidate for Flynn Colin Boyce for a tour of Auckland Hill in Gladstone on Monday.

Addressing the media, Mr Joyce accused Labor leader Anthony Albanese of "sinking his slipper into Flynn" by creating a new policy which increased taxes of 18 businesses.

"There's one in Sydney and there's 18 here, he's got 18 reasons to stick the slipper into Flynn and that is how much Anthony Albanese really loves Flynn," he said.

"He says he's on your side, but he's not on your side at all."

Senator Canavan said the upcoming election would highlight jobs and the future of Central Queensland.

"I would encourage everyone in Gladstone at some point before the election and look around. Look around because it doesn't matter if you look South, East, North or West you will find a major employing business Anthony Albanese wants to tax under their climate change policy," he said.

"At Auckland point lookout you cannot really see a place which is not going to be taxed under Labor's climate change policy, if you go to Centre Point Tower in Sydney there is hardly anything which will be taxed under Labor," he said.

LNP candidate for Flynn Colin Boyce said he would bat for the jobs of the people in Central Queensland if he was elected.

"We want to see the port of Gladstone expand, we want to see industry expand, we want to see jobs expand," he said.

"It is all about connecting Gladstone with the inland rail which will open up vast opportunities for future industries.

"I am here to make sure the people in Central Queensland have a job."

Meanwhile Mr O'Dowd, who announced he would step down from his seat last year, said the Liberal Party "would win" the upcoming election

"We are looking forward to 2022, there are lots of projects in the pipeline, which will be great for the Gladstone community," Mr O'Dowd.

"We are looking forward to an election year, an election which we will win."

Residents to be mindful of water consumption

Gladstone Area Water Board (GAWB) is urging local residents to remain mindful of their water consumption despite recent rainfall, which has seen Awoonga Dam's water levels increase since November 22.

Long term water security in the region is GAWB's number one priority and they want to work with the community, industrial customers and the Queensland Government to respond to water supply challenges brought on by drought, climate change and customer demand.

While the Bureau of Meteorology is predicting a wetter than average summer, their message remains the same; we all need to play our part and make every drop count.

Tanya Wieden stands as UAP candidate

By Eilish Massie

With an election looming, a new candidate has put her hand up for the seat of Flynn.

Tanya Wieden, who has been a familiar face at local Covid freedom rallies, is running for the seat of Flynn under the United Australia Party.

Ms Wieden was recently the MC at a pro choice rally regarding the Covid vaccine in Gladstone's Lions Park last November.

Ms Wieden joins LNP candidate Colin Boyce and Labor candidate Matt Burnett who are also running for the seat as the incumbent MP Ken O'Dowd retires.

The seat of Flynn has been held by Mr O'Dowd since 2010 and encompasses Gladstone, Central Highlands, Banana and North Burnett council areas.

The division also includes part of the Rockhampton, Bundaberg and South Burnett regions.

While the UAP is yet to formally announce its Federal Election candidates, Ms Wieden announced she would be running on Facebook.

"I am extremely concerned about our country," she said.

"My fears have led me to this point, where I feel it's time to step up.

"We are rapidly losing our most basic human rights and the larger parties no longer stand for the values of everyday Australians.

"Our forefathers spilt blood for our freedom, which is why I'm putting myself forward - for the future of my family and our wonderful country."

Ms Wieden grew up on a small farm outside of Thangool, with her two brothers and sister.

After finishing Year 12 at Biloela High School, she completed a hairdressing apprenticeship and 'Trends by Tanya' was her first business, which she opened at 19.

The mother-of-two moved to Gladstone after the breakdown of her marriage for a fresh start where she began running a successful business for more than a decade.

After selling her business, Tanya ventured into training and assessment for Designer Life Training.

While it was challenging, it was rewarding, supporting long-term unemployed and multicultural groups, teaching employability skills and a range of Cert III qualifications.

In 2018 Tanya commenced a traineeship with Rio Tinto, hoping that this would widen her career and provide job security into the future.

Ms Wieden is still employed by the company but like many Australians, is now facing the uncertainty of vaccination mandates.

Funds for high-tech sector

A $636,972 Queensland Government Manufacturing Hub grant has enabled Gladstone business, Upton Engineering and Manufacturing, to invest in its future, through the purchase of a 5-axis machining centre. The equipment, which includes specialist tooling and software, will help Upton staff increase capacity and capability, as well as create job opportunities for more than a dozen people.

The new equipment and staff skills will mean the business is well positioned to continue their growth in traditional and emerging industries, targeting customers across Central Queensland, as well as further throughout the state.

On a visit to the Gladstone-based business, Minister for Regional Development, Manufacturing and Water Glenn Butcher said Upton Engineering was just one of the latest recipients to be awarded funding, through the Palaszczuk government's $13.5 million Manufacturing Hub Grant Program.

"The Queensland Government believes in local businesses and has invested more than $600,000 in Upton Engineering, through this grant program, enabling the business to grow and create 14 new jobs, thanks to this increased capability.

"The grant was delivered through the Queensland Government's Gladstone Manufacturing Hub.

The hub provides a place for local manufacturing businesses to receive expert advice and support, with the aim to help industry professionals become more productive and drive job creation into the future."

"As a mechanical fitter and turner myself, I also congratulate the Upton team for investing in their people through training and upskilling, which contributes to staff retention and also helps keep skilled workers in our local manufacturing sector," Minister Butcher said.

Managing Director, Mitch Upton, said the grant had given the company the opportunity to accelerate their growth opportunities into existing and emerging markets, in ways not previously thought possible.

"This state-of-the-art 5-axis machining centre, with specialist tooling and software, expands our capabilities not only for the heavy industrial and engineering sectors in Gladstone and across Central Queensland, but also supports our expansion into the defence sector and in the future, the aerospace industries.

"It will enhance our current capabilities and allow us to deliver an internationally competitive advanced sovereign manufacturing capability from Gladstone."

Mr Butcher said the $13.5 million Manufacturing Hubs Grant Program supports the regional manufacturing sector to implement and deliver world leading technologies, processes, and practices.

"Gladstone's Manufacturing Hub is supporting manufacturers to become more productive through technology adoption, skills and training, strategic business development and advanced robotic manufacturing services.

"Our local manufacturing industry is a vital contributor to our state's economy and the Gladstone Hub specialises in delivering more jobs and innovation in industries such as bio-fuels, hydrogen and renewable energy," he said.

"Financial assistance, up to $1 million, is available to eligible businesses, to help build their manufacturing capabilities."

Students look to the stars

By Brittney Manning

Gladstone students learnt the benefits of a career in STEM earlier this week at the Young Engineers Summer holiday camp.

The event was hosted at the CQU Gladstone Marina campus and aimed to ignite students' passions for science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM).

Event organiser Pavle Jeric said the workshops were designed to accommodate a space theme in line with Australia's growing space industry.

"The space industry is actually massive and there are many employment opportunities in the future," Mr Jeric said.

"Australia is one of those ideal places for space launches due to our proximity to the equator, compared to other locations."

On Monday and Tuesday, participants in grades one to six from primary schools around the region used LEGO and programmable motors in a series of group challenges.

The program comes as Queensland looks to expand its space exploration efforts and young students are being encouraged to explore study pathways in STEM fields.

Mr Jeric said it was important to bring educational programs, such as Young Engineers, to regional Queensland students to familiarise them with academic careers.

"We need to start them young because kids will form massive pre-conceptions about a job or a career at a very young age," Mr Jeric said.

Tutor Sue Carningham and third-year CQU education student Bec showed students how to construct and program LEGO models including mineral and water mining machinery.

Many students said they hoped to become engineers and lawyers when they leave school.

The Young Engineers program will return next term at Tannum Sands State High School.

Gladstone's top industry giants have revealed how they would handle the influx of covid cases if workers are affected.

Industry's plan to tackle Covid cases

By Eilish Massie

Gladstone's top industry giants have revealed how they would handle the influx of covid cases if workers are affected.

Boyer Smelter Limited, Queensland Alumina Limited, Rio Tinto Yarwun and Gladstone Ports Corporation have enforced strict Covid-19 controls and protocols at their sites to ensure the safety of the community.

A Rio Tinto spokesperson said Rio Tinto was closely monitoring and reacting to developments around escalating Covid-19 case numbers in and around Gladstone.

"Our first priority remains the health and safety of our employees, contractors and the local community," they said.

"At our Gladstone operations (BSL, QAL and Yarwun), strict Rio Tinto and Queensland Government Covid-19 controls and protocols that have ensured we have been able to safely operate throughout the pandemic continue to be enforced."

According to Rio Tinto, these include rapid antigen testing for all work-related travel to site from outside the region and in other specific circumstances, as well as other onsite measures including good hygiene, social distancing and mask wearing when social distancing is not practical.

"In addition, we have enforced a number of controls across our operations including alternate teams or working from home arrangements, changes to vehicle and room occupancies, regular cleaning and disinfecting work areas and social distancing measures," they said.

"BSL, QAL and Rio Tinto Yarwun all have detailed Covid-19 response plans in place designed to keep our people and the community safe, as well as ensure business continuity."

Meanwhile a GPC spokesperson said GPC had several measures in place.

These included an effective program of communication and education, strict guidelines for cleaning, mandatory mask-wearing, hygiene, physical distancing, access control, screening questionnaires and Rapid Antigen Testing.

"(These measures) have contributed to maintaining the health and safety of all persons who access our facilities," the spokesperson said.

"The health and safety of workers and the wider community remains a priority at Gladstone Ports Corporation (GPC) while the port maintains critical supply chains in the midst of the ever evolving pandemic.

"GPC continues to operate under the direction of the Australian and Queensland Governments and continues to work closely with Maritime Safety Queensland."

The spokesperson said GPC had been successful in balancing the welfare of essential port workers, seafarers, tenants and service providers with the current economic and operational imperatives and remains proactive with its Crisis Management Team regularly assessing and actioning updates.

"GPC's Covid Response Management Committee remains activated and meets regularly to conduct ongoing Covid monitoring, assessment and treatment recommendations for GPC's business activities."

Data shows Covid trend

Covid cases have reached an all-time high, with Queensland reporting 22,069 new cases on Wednesday, 12 January.

In Central Queensland there are 184 confirmed cases over the past 24 hours:

- 66 in Rockhampton Regional Council area
- 47 in Gladstone Regional Council area
- 37 in Livingstone Shire Council area
- 24 in Central Highlands Regional Council area
- 5 in Banana Shire Council area
- 5 people with a CQ address who are elsewhere

At the time of printing, 30 people are in the Intensive Care Unit, eight of whom are on ventilation.

Queensland's Chief Health Officer, Dr John Gerrard, advised that there are 525 cases in hospital requiring treatment for Covid-19.

"We now have enough data to see some trends in who is ending up in Queensland Hospitals," he said.

"The importance of booster vaccinations is very clear.

"If you are unvaccinated, you are nine times more likely to end up in Queensland hospitals than if you have received three doses of the vaccination.

Health Minister Yvette D'Ath is urging people to come forward to get their booster once they are eligible.

"If it has been four months, come forward and get your booster.

"748,053 people have received their booster across Queensland.

"Of our eligible population aged 16 and over, 91.2 per cent have had their first dose whilst 88 per cent are fully vaccinated.

"We are so close to having 90 per cent of the population fully vaccinated."

On Monday, 10 January, children were eligible to receive their first Covid-19 vaccinations.

Over 39 thousand children aged between five to 11 years old are booked to get their first dose over the next coming days.

Rodeo event cancelled

By Eilish Massie

Calliope Rodeo and Specialty Events organisers have expressed their disappointment after the decision was made to cancel an upcoming event.

CRSE's Australia Day Rodeo, set for 22 January, was postponed due to the current Queensland Government Covid-19 legislations.

While no new date has been set, CRSE publicity officer Debbie Parr said organisers were 'disappointed' in having to cancel.

"The reason we postponed it is because with regulations changing all the time we really didn't want to risk getting a fine for something potentially that we didn't know was wrong," Ms Parr said.

"We read the legislation almost daily to try and keep up with what's going on and we just figured that we don't want to get a fine and they have their own limitations."

Ms Parr said the event was almost 90 per cent organised at the time the CRSE chose to postpone it.

"It is disheartening, in a time where we kind of are all looking forward to something good," she said.

"We're still hoping to run something early in the year if we can but it fully depends on what restrictions are...we're taking it day by day at this point."

Ms Parr said she looked forward to seeing rodeo goers once restrictions eased.

Zac forges a new career path thanks to joint effort

The cogs of Zac Phillips' future are turning fast, with the fourth-year Engineering student already securing employment with local firm, Xtreme Engineering in his hometown of Gladstone.

The 29-year-old started work at Xtreme Engineering in December last year, after he was referred by Lecturer Dr Ashfaque Chowdhury.

"Dr Chowdhury contacted me out of the blue to say that Xtreme were looking for someone and I jumped at the chance," Zac said.

"I was with Bellis Insulation at the time, but this is more centred around mechanical engineering. I've only been with Xtreme a few weeks but it's pretty good so far, even though I am still learning the ropes."

Zac said his role at Xtreme was a project engineering type role and he had been busy doing estimating for various projects. He said he was very interested to see where the role took him.

Zac's success is even more significant, given the fact that Engineering wasn't his first choice of study with CQU.

"I started in psychology and was studying that on the Gold Coast when I decided it wasn't for me," he said.

"Eventually I came back to Gladstone and got some work as a trades assistant in a hydraulics shutdown on Curtis Island and I really liked the technical aspects of that job."

It wasn't long after that Zac enrolled in Engineering, and he hasn't looked back.

"I'm in my fourth year now and employed as an undergraduate. I've really enjoyed the degree – it's been great for problem solving and learning how to design things. It definitely gives you the structure to set you up for a job," he said.

"Part of me wants to be designing things in the future, but I'm still only just experiencing the industry."

Xtreme Engineering General Manager Scott Harrington said the firm was happy to have Zac on board.

"Zac has been a tremendous pickup for us as he has been able to immediately apply some of his Engineering training that he has gained from attending CQUniversity and apply that learning into our own work environment here at Xtreme Engineering," Mr Harrington said.

Zac advised anyone considering studying at Engineering CQU to follow through.

"If you like to know how things work in a deep, problem-solving manner then you should definitely do it," he said.

"I have found the degree really interesting – solving problems is very rewarding and it's not all just theory."

"If you're a problem solver the degree is good to sink your teeth into and challenging at the same time."

Zac Phillips is looking forward to a future in engineering.

Disability advocate Kate Dufty and Cr Rick Hansen point to where the new disabled car parks are located.

Parking options increased in city centre

Gladstone Regional Council will increase parking options in Goondoon Street with the addition of two designated disabled parking spaces for public use.

The car parks are located towards the rear of Council's 101 Goondoon Street office and can be accessed via Goondoon Street.

Signage is in place to direct motorists to these new parking spaces. The remaining car parks in this area are reserved for Council.

The addition of two disabled car parks came in response to feedback associated with the recent Goondoon Street CBD Civic Precinct Footpath Renewal Project.

Emerging community leader and disability advocate, Kate Dufty, was thrilled to see the new car parks and is now determined to make more people aware of them.

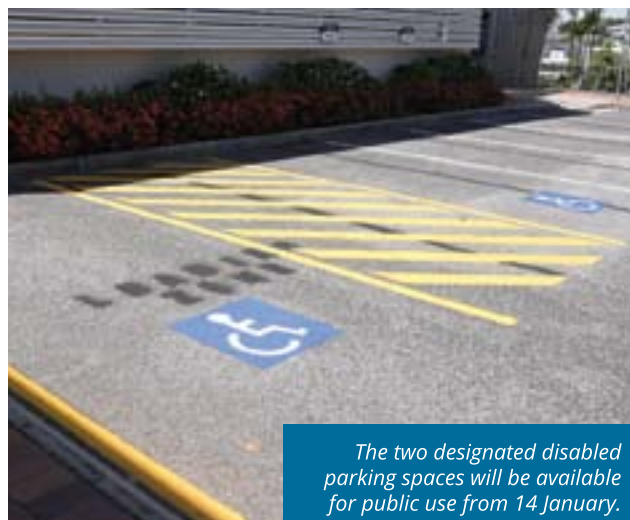

"It's a matter of getting the word out and word of mouth is great and because I've got some networks too that's a really good thing," Kate said.

"A lot of people probably wonder when they've got to come here where they can get a park without knowing there's two beautiful parks here, so the more we can publicise it the better."

In addition to the disabled car parks, extra rubbish bins were also requested and have now been provided throughout the CBD.

A single, general purpose bin has been installed adjacent to the Rydges Gladstone and Wilhelmsen driveways, with double waste and recycle bins also installed near Council's 109 Goondoon Street office.

It is hoped these rubbish bins will assist in keeping the newly revamped CBD streetscaping in showcase condition.

The two designated disabled parking spaces will be available for public use from 14 January.

Exhibitions aplenty ready for display

Those with an appreciation for art and local history are in for a treat over the coming months with a plethora of exhibitions just waiting to be discovered.

Kids' vax should be choice

This week Pfizer's Covid-19 vaccine was made available in Australia to children aged five to 11 years old. It should remain a parent's choice whether their children are vaccinated.

Our medical system is based on informed consent for the good reason that all medical treatments involve risks. Each individual (or in the case of children the parents or guardian) deserves the right to weigh up these risks and make their own decision.

There can be reasonable disagreements about the balance between the benefits and risks especially given there is so much we still do not know about Covid or the vaccines.

What is not in dispute is that coronavirus is not a major risk for young children. Not a single child aged between five to 11 had died from coronavirus in the data the Australian regulator - the Therapeutic Goods Administration (TGA) - relied on to approve the vaccine for young children. According to data compiled by the New York Times, the flu is a greater risk to young children than Covid - although both are low risks. Young children are not normally given the flu vaccine.

Some, however, are arguing that all children should be given the vaccine because it would protect adults from coronavirus spread.

A Pfizer representative said that the 'societal benefits' have to be factored in. The Australian Advisory Committee on Vaccines (which advise the TGA) stated that "there are likely to be both direct and indirect benefits to this age group and the broader community associated with vaccination of this age group."

Professor Michael Hawkes, from the University of Alberta, said that "childhood vaccination generates an 'altruistic' reduction in the number of adult cases, hospitalisation, and mortality particularly among the unvaccinated, who have a high risk of adverse outcomes".

Is it really altruistic to impose risks on children to protect adults? One hundred years ago when the Titanic was sinking it was women and children first. That should still be our standard because there is a moral obligation to protect the young and, by doing so, protect our future. Some of the arguments put in favour of vaccinating children are putting a reverse equation forward.

These 'immunity' arguments, which treat children as part of the 'herd', fail on their own standards. The broad idea here is that vaccinating children will limit the spread of coronavirus by achieving 'herd immunity'.

We can all see that the vaccines do not do a good job at stopping people getting Covid and hence there is no real 'societal benefit' from getting all children vaccinated. As the TGA said in their approval "Vaccine efficacy against asymptomatic infection and viral transmission are not known for the proposed age group."

The decision then returns to what is best for the child.

In the United States approval, their drug regulator (the FDA) ran a number of scenarios that compared the risk of myocarditis (a rare, heart related side effect of the vaccines) to the benefits of preventing severe Covid in children. Of the six scenarios, all but one showed a net benefit in children receiving the vaccine.

However, the one scenario that showed greater risks than benefits was the one in which the vaccine did not prevent many children getting COVID. Given the emergence of the Omicron variant, and the clear evidence that vaccines are not doing a good job at stopping people getting COVID, this scenario is relevant for our current situation.

The TGA noted in their approval that "No cases of myocarditis or pericarditis were observed, but the participants' numbers and duration of follow-up was relatively small and post-marketing surveillance will be of critical importance." Pfizer is still conducting studies and is currently evaluating troponin 1 levels (a marker for myocarditis) in children post vaccine.

All of this reveals why we should let parents decide what is best for their children. We should resist any mandates that would force children to get a vaccine for a virus that is of little risk to them.

Burnout, torment and tension, but hate is not the path

"You cannot reap what you have not sown. How are we going to reap love in our community if we only sow hate?" - St. Oscar Romero.

There is so much anger, torment, tension, unpredictability, and burnout right now in our community and around the world as we continue our quest forward out of this insidious pandemic.

No one has lived through these particular conditions before but it will never excuse bullying or abuse.

The pandemic has done a devastating amount of damage to what we used to class as a 'normal' life and it continues to leave us with more questions than it does answers. Every step we take now comes with a considerable amount of second guessing and for this natural born overthinker, it's becoming way too much.

As we continue to try to adapt to new measures and restrictions that are introduced on a regular basis, the hardest most heartbreaking thing for me is seeing our beloved small hardworking businesses suffering yet another hideous blow and having to ride a traumatizing rollercoaster of emotions with each passing day.

Mental health is more important than ever before and while the changing ways of the world are aiming to protect everyone's health, it is making it so much harder to truly be there for others when they need the support most.

I understand we have been enduring unprecedented times, a crisis that will go down in the history books for sure, and I understand it is hard preserving the patience to continue to do all that we can to get through safely, but the cost is becoming greater by the day as we are jeopardizing the human spirit.

This is a moment in time that shows just how important our values and priorities are. A moment that can be whatever we make it so we have to learn how to step forward with the right amount of sensitivity and strategy.

While we may all have our differences and varying views, it's crucial that we take better care of ourselves and the people around us. We need each other now more than ever. Congregation is going to be much more beneficial than segregation. If we can move through this mayhem with mindfulness and push on with positivity instead of the pessimism in these extremely trying times, I genuinely believe we can do anything.

There's no room for hate or abuse over situations beyond our control but there's plenty of opportunities for learning, loving, and getting back to living our best lives yet. Hate is never the path to follow if we want a harmonious and prosperous outcome.

Jordie Lynch says the pandemic has done a "devastating amount of damage to what we used to class as a 'normal' life".

I truly hope we can continue to support our small local businesses, assist those around us, keep the random acts of kindness going, and stay consistent with our incredible efforts to reap the benefits of (hopefully soon) a world away from this constant stress, angst, and unpredictability. We're all in this together.

No one should ever have to feel like they are going through these times alone. Below are some marvellous mental health sources to provide that bit of extra support if needed:

LYNCHY'S JOKE OF THE WEEK

1. Just letting you know I am not a very good traveler.

A drive to my hometown would take seven hours so we now tend to fly which I still find the hour + flight boring.

I was on a flight to Brisby this day and there was a young fella two seats in front of me making a hell of a ruckus. Then I will guarantee you as soon as the seatbelt light went off the young'un was running up and down the aisle of the plane.

Mum was just sitting there oblivious of what he was doing.

He actually bumped into one of the flight attendants and made her spill the coffee she had prepaid.

Next thing you know the other flight attendant spoke on the intercom, "Can the mother or father of the disruptive little boy making a hell of a racket running around bumping into people take the child back to his seat and restrain him or we are going to instruct him to go and play outside."

2. I used to live in the suburb of Harristown in Toowoomba and our Saturday afternoon entertainment was watching my dog chase people on a bike.

My brother and I thought it was hilarious until it got to the stage Mum and Dad were getting so many complaints, they told us that if he continues this we are going to make you take his bike off him.

Novel ideas boost tourism

A new tourism innovation fund, 'Turtle Tank' has been designed to support the Gladstone Region through the challenges of the Covid-19 pandemic and assist with the recovery of the tourism industry.

The purpose of Turtle Tank is to fund innovative ideas, campaigns and initiatives in the tourism space that benefit the region now and into the future.

A total of $100,000 will be available, made up of $50,000 from Gladstone Regional Council and $50,000 from the Together Gladstone Fund.

Financial contributors of the Together Gladstone Fund include Boyne Smelters Limited, ConocoPhillips as downstream operator of Australia Pacific LNG, Queensland Alumina Limited, Rio Tinto Yarrow, Santos GLNG, Shell's QGC Business and other local industries.

Gladstone Regional Council Acting Mayor Kahn Goodluck said the Turtle Tank fund is loosely based on the hit Network Ten show Shark Tank and involves a three-step application process.

"The final step in the process will see applicants invited to attend the 'Turtle Tank' to pitch their initiative to a panel of 'expert investors' made up of Gladstone Regional Council, Together Gladstone and GAPDL representatives," Councillor Goodluck said.

"Prior to sinking their teeth in – or in this case, sliding into the Turtle Tank – applicants must attend the upcoming Tourism Innovation Fund information session.

"From there, they must submit a written application outlining the basics of their initiative to the panel for assessment.

"This is an exciting concept and one we hope will stimulate the tourism industry, while also increasing liveability and visitation in our region by growing tourism offerings."

Applications open from today (Monday 10 January) with the Tourism Innovation Fund information session to be held at Gladstone

The Guide

Going places:
Comedian Rosie Jones, right, and presenter Scarlett Moffatt hit the road in Trip Hazard.

PICK OF THE WEEK

TRIP HAZARD: MY GREAT BRITISH ADVENTURE
SBS Viceland,
Monday, 8.30pm

Comedian Rosie Jones fronts this travel caper with an infectious grin. The refreshing series sees her take a celebrity pal with her in each episode exploring Britain, in her own words: "going to sh** places and making the most of it". It's a cheeky and uplifting journey, which is narrated by Olivia Colman, and sees Jones not only check out some rather beautiful locations, but parody the travel show genre with pretend "behind the scenes" scenes. In this double-episode premiere, the shenanigans kick off with Jones whisking presenter Scarlett Moffatt to the former home of William Wordsworth.

SEX & MUSIC: BLURRED GENDERS
SBS Viceland, Friday, 9.20pm

You could say that sex and music go hand in hand – but that wasn't always the case. Back in the '50s, around 3% of pop songs mentioned sex. Fast-forward to 2009 and 92% of songs were about the birds and the bees. This insightful series explores how pop music has influenced our sex lives and vice versa. Take a look at how performers such as David Bowie (pictured) and Mick Jagger, and their unique representations of gender, have influenced our appearances and attitudes.

WHY WOMEN KILL
SBS Viceland, Saturday, 8.30pm

Don't mistake this campy series as another true-crime documentary lifting the lid on murderous women. The cheekily titled Why Women Kill is a gaudy and fun creation from Marc Cherry, the man behind the smash hit drama of the early 2000s, Desperate Housewives. Season two of the black comedy introduces a new cast and a striking 1940s setting, along with more swoon-worthy costumes. We meet Alma (Allison Tolman, Fargo, pictured) who dreams of filling a recently vacated seat in her local garden club.

60 MINUTES
Nine, Sunday, 7pm

After the silly season of parties and junk food, many of us are craving some investigative journalism to bring us back to reality and, after more than 40 years of serving just that, 60 Minutes is a winner. In this week's instalment, Sarah Abo (pictured) takes a look at the medical mystery of foreign accent syndrome. Tara Brown revisits the incredible story of Pasquale Buzzelli, the miracle man of 9/11, who survived after falling 18 floors as the towers collapsed.

Green goddess fresh avo

By Tania Phillips

The simplest things are often the best.

This fresh-as salad sandwich amps up the flavour stakes with a flavour-packed green goddess made even better by using creamy

Hass avocado as the base, instead of the more common mayo.

Pile on your favourite crisp and crunchy salad ingredients, and of course, more avocado. You'll be glad you did.

GREEN-IS-GOOD AVOCADO SALAD

Prep time: 15 mins
Makes: 4 sandwiches

Ingredients

- 8 slices seeded sandwich or sourdough bread
- 2 ripe Hass avocados, halved, stones removed, flesh scooped out and sliced

- 1 Lebanese cucumber, thinly sliced
- ½ baby cos lettuce, leaves separated and coarsely torn
- ½ cup baby spinach leaves

- ¼ cup mint leaves
- Lemon juice, to taste
- Avocado green goddess dressing
- 2 ripe Hass avocados, halved, stones removed, flesh scooped out and coarsely chopped
- ½ cup each basil leaves and flat-leaf parsley leaves

- 1 spring onion, coarsely chopped
- 1 garlic clove

ICED WHIPPED COFFEE

Whipped coffee is a unique twist on your iced coffee if you're looking for something new to cool down with in the New Year.

The drink became a craze on social media during 2020 when people experimented in the kitchen during Queensland's main covid-19 lockdowns. The sweet treat is also called Dalgona Coffee and originated in South Korea.

Burnett Today journalist Jessica tried out this recipe courtesy of hobby baker @sos.bringcake.

Ingredients

- 2 tbsp instant coffee (instant coffee works best)
- 2 tbsp sugar
- 2 tbsp water

- Milk
- Ice cubes
- chocolate shavings (if desired)

Method

1. Blend the instant coffee, sugar and water up with either a hand mixer or a blender.
2. Blend until it reaches medium peaks.
3. Prepare a glass with ice and milk and pour/spoon the whipped coffee over the top. Mix in as - much as you want.

  4. Sprinkle chocolate shavings on top if desired.
- *Whipped coffee can also be served hot - just put the whipped coffee on top of hot milk.
(Generous single serve)

Gladstone on its way to change gas for good

In line with the Queensland Government’s goal to generate 50% of its energy needs from renewable sources by 2030, Gladstone households connected to gas will receive up to 10% blended renewable gas from September 2022, supplied by the proposed Hydrogen Park Gladstone (HyP Gladstone) facility (subject to necessary approvals).

Under the proposal from Australian Gas Networks (AGN), which is currently with Gladstone Regional Council for Development Assessment, HyP Gladstone would use water and renewable electricity to produce renewable hydrogen for blending into the existing AGN distribution network.

Craig de Laine, Chief Executive Officer at the Australian Gas Infrastructure Group, said the small demonstration facility would be a similar size to around four tennis courts and was planned for a 30mx37m site on Derby Street, South Gladstone.

“Hydrogen Park Gladstone will play a significant role in starting to decarbonise the city’s gas supply and help develop the region’s emerging renewable hydrogen industry which will create new economic development opportunities,” Mr de Laine said.

“As a longstanding owner of gas infrastructure in Gladstone and throughout Central Queensland, we are proud to contribute to a low carbon economy and meet our customers’ expectations to support decarbonisation. HyP Gladstone would save approximately 57 tonnes in carbon dioxide emissions each year, the equivalent to removing around 19 petrol passenger vehicles from the road.”

“Through our extensive community consultation program we have received many positive responses to the project. Ongoing discussions with stakeholders have provided valuable insight into the community’s view of HyP Gladstone, including some matters requiring clarification. We’ve addressed these in our recently submitted response to Council, further detailing the extensive safety assessment undertaken and providing more details on how the site was selected. There are no plans to expand the facility or export.”

“We would encourage anyone with further questions to contact our project team directly on 1300 001 001 (option 8) or communityengagement@agig.com.au,” he said.

Hydrogen Park Gladstone is supported by the Queensland Government, with grant funding of up to $1.78 million from the Hydrogen Industry Development Fund.

In the spirit of reconciliation AGN acknowledge the Byellee, Gooreng Gooreng, Gurang and Taribelang Bunda people who are the traditional custodians of the land in Gladstone and its surrounds. AGN would also like to pay respect to Elders past, present and emerging, and extends that respect to all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples today.

New year of new wines

Happy New Year!

There is nothing quite like the Australian wine market in terms of the choice we have. We are blessed with the range available and the diversity of wines on offer.

Name any wine producing country anywhere in the world and we will have an importer, a retailer or a restaurant, somewhere in Australia selling it.

As we head into another year of uncertainty in our daily lives. One thing is for sure: the wine will continue to flow. Grapes will be picked, wine will be produced and we the Australian customer, will have before us, choice beyond our capacity to understand all on display.

So how does a person with limited knowledge navigate through the endless bottles of choice before them? And the answer is, exactly the same way a person with knowledge of wine does! And that is to purchase a different wine each time you go into your chosen wine shop.

Or join a Wine Tasting Group. And discuss in forum style the wines on offer. I've been told many times, 'Oh its OK for you, as you know about wine'. So lets debunk the idea that if you don't know anything about wine, in some way your view within your chosen tasting group, is not valid.

I don't know much about art or music.

But that doesn't stop me having an opinion about paintings I own or view or the music I listen to. I can put an argument together to support my personal choice: It is purely subjective based on experience and appeal to my senses.

jective based on experience and appeal to my senses.

Learning about wine is the same, especially as we use three of our senses; sight, smell and of course taste.

On my wine courses many attendees have that lightbulb moment.

All of a sudden, they can pick up a wine, they have tasted for the first time and with a new found confidence in front of the group. Openly explain, the aromas they are smelling and what they are tasting. Once this Hooray moment arrives. Then they seek to taste new and different wines.

And quickly book on the next course which will discuss how the one grape varietal such as Sauvignon Blanc, smells different and tastes different when sourced from different areas of production.

And then once that is understood. The next exciting step in their world of wine journey is matching wine and food and that deserves to be called a Masterclass.

I look forward to discussing the above, with you throughout this year.

WineBill attending his first wine tasting in 2022.

What are you going to sell?: Part Two, the on-sell

YOUR BUSINESS QUESTIONS ANSWERED

WITH JAMES HARRIS

james@qsb-consulting.com

Last time we talked about costing products you designed yourself. This week we are going to look at selecting and buying products wholesale that you can then resell. If you are intending to buy and resell a product, the first question is, do you already know what that product is? If you do, things are relatively straight forward.

Before you do anything else you need to know how many other people are selling the same product and more importantly, how much they are selling it for? You can't expect to be selling your product for more than most of your competitors. A quick Google search here can give you an idea.

Once you have estimated what you can sell your chosen product for, you need to identify possible suppliers. You need to know how much each of these suppliers will sell units to you for. You also need to be aware of minimum orders. If you must order many units, you are increasing your risk significantly because you may end up with a lot of money tied up in products that are untested, at least by you. As a rule, the smaller number of units you can order the better.

It is also important to be aware of shipping costs per unit. This will be as simple as dividing the total shipping cost by the number of units and then adding that number onto each unit, just like we talked about last time.

At this point it is also worth asking potential suppliers if they will ship individual units to your customers directly with your logo on the packaging and sales documents. Failing this, a supplier who will post products directly to your customers without any of their own branding can also work.

If you don't know what you are going to sell, things get a little more complicated. You need to identify a product that you are interested in selling and that customers are interested in buying.

One of the simplest ways of doing this is to start watching what the bestselling products on sites like Amazon are. Most marketplace sites will provide this information somewhere, but you might have to dig for it a little bit.

Once you have decided on a product, you can move on to identifying possible suppliers. Again, you need to know how much each supplier will sell units to you for. As covered above, you need to be aware of minimum orders, shipping costs and whether a potential supplier will ship individual units directly to your customers with your logo on the packaging and included sales documents.

Similarly, you still need to know how many other people are selling the same product and more importantly, how much they are selling it for, because once again, you can't expect to be selling the same product for more than your competitors.

We touched on Google above and you should not underestimate how much free information you can get by Googling the product. It will be very easy to build up a repository of data including who is selling it, how much they are selling it for and how they are advertising/describing it. When comparing pricing, be mindful that prices can appear to vary more than they actually do because some sellers will include free postage while others will price low and only disclose postage costs at the checkout.

Next time we'll take the information you have gathered and use it to figure out if the product you have selected is financially viable, but in the meantime if you have a question about starting a business or running your existing business, we'd love to hear from you because we'll regularly select new questions to answer here every two weeks. You can submit your question to james@qsb-consulting.com using the subject 'CQToday'.

Petunia Petticoat.

Dalchampia aristolochiaefolia.

Rose and Things at Barcaldine.

Bright hot weather roses

As we start the New Year, most rose gardens are still a mass of colour and most vases inside the homes will still be overflowing with flowers.

But here are some important notes to get the very best for this summer. With the dry conditions we are having, more frequent watering will be required.

Water should be applied to your roses if the soil is dry for more than a depth of 40mm and it is still the best to water only every two or three days.

It is important also not to use overhead watering if possible, and do not water in the evening, as the dampness will promote fungus disease like Black Spot.

BOW TIE VINE

Different in just about every way the Dalchampia aristolochiaefolia or commonly known as the Bow Tie Vine or Silk Crepe Flower would make a conversation piece in most gardens.

This is a very hardy evergreen climber with green heart-shaped leaves that is even frost hardy. Dalchampia will grow in full sun or partial sun and once established is semi drought tolerant. Dalchampia aristolochiaefolia is a native of Peru but Dalchampia can be found growing naturally in most tropical countries.

The Dalchampia's bright mauve-pink bracts are very unusual in shape and texture. These bracts look like a Bow Tie and feel like silk hence the common names. Similar to most members of the Poinsettia family the flowers are small, heart shaped and red in colour. Flowering mainly in summer and autumn the Dalchampia can also flowers at other times during the year.

Dalchampia can be grown as an individual creeper on a fence or trellis or it can be used intertwined with other climbing plants. It can reach a height of 5m in perfect conditions with the best plant I have seen was growing in a Benaraby garden.

POT PLANTS FOR FEBRUARY

It's not just the garden that can look good for February, but it is also an opportunity to create colour displays on a balcony, patio or other sunny living areas.

This can be achieved by planting beautiful flowering annuals in containers. Whether they be simple pots, decorative urns, or window planter boxes, containers are perfect for growing flowering annuals at any time of the year.

They are also good for providing a low maintenance solution to brightening up a courtyard or patio area. Growing plants in containers can also provide a much-needed activity for children, providing both the thrill of watching the plant grow and the responsibility of maintaining the plant.

There are many varieties of annuals available at your local nursery suitable for container planting. Petunias are a regular favourite, offering a wide range of colours either in fashionable or bright mixes or in separate colours. Snapdragons, marigolds, pansies and violas all provide excellent displays in pots.

Plants can be purchased as seedlings and in a few short weeks they will be flowering. Once potted, these plants should be kept out of windy spots, as moisture will evaporate more quickly.

Avoid very shady spots as well, as most summer annuals need plenty of sun. A handy hint to remember when planting your seedling - a good potting mix is important. I would recommend one that is well-balanced, light and easy draining and that includes slow release fertilisers and water retention granules.

Remember though, a feed of a soluble fertiliser every couple of weeks will be needed to keep the flowers coming.

PLANT NOW FOR FEBRUARY

Annuals - Marigolds, Salvia, Petunia, Alyssum, Candytuft, Cineraria, Clarkia, Cornflower, Delphinium, Dianthus Gypsophila, Larkspur, Linaria, Lobelia, Pansy, Phlox, Poppy, Primula, Snapdragon, Statice, Stock, Sweet Pea, Verbena and Viola

Vegetables and Herbs - Beans, Beetroot, Broccoli, Cabbage, Cauliflower, Carrot, Celery, Lettuce, Mint, Mustard, Parsley, Radish, Squash, Silverbeet, Tomato and Zucchini and all herbs

Filling in the info gaps

By Michael Guerin, AgForce CEO

The past few weeks have highlighted what a land of extremes Australia is.

While the end of 2021 saw AgForce welcoming the State Government's long-awaited launch of its new drought programs for producers affected by decade-long drought, catastrophic flooding throughout the State, most recently in the Wide Bay and Somerset regions, has put lives, property, and livestock at risk.

It's why AgForce has stood up its crisis management response team, engaging strongly with Government to ensure we get the right services to the right people in the right places.

While monitoring sites from the Bureau of Meteorology (BOM) can record rainfall information – like the extreme total of more than 650mm at Marodian last Friday night – along water systems, they can't provide flood information between systems.

That's where people power, our producers –

AgForce CEO Michael Guerin says producers fill in 'black holes of information' that would otherwise go uncaptured.

literally hundreds of families who live in properties in flood-affected areas – and AgForce come in, filling in black holes of information that would otherwise go uncaptured.

To assist further, AgForce has prepared an online map that anyone (AgForce member or not) can use to locate their property and complete a set of 'flood-impact' questions.

We want to know about your welfare, where you're located, and the extent of any damage sustained to your property – including losses to crops, infrastructure, and livestock.

One response received so far from a producer north of Kilkivan indicated 946mm of rain had fallen on their property – startling evidence of what is currently being missed.

The emotional and financial toll from these floods will be, as it always is, extreme, which is why we're encouraging anyone affected to complete the questions in the online map, and upload photos.

This open-source, real-time information from people at the coalface is – even during this time of unprecedented levels of technology – still the best way to guarantee we respond quickly and accurately, and make sure no flooded areas are overlooked.

AgForce will continue supporting Government, providing your confidential, deidentified responses to not only push for increased systems to enhance our State's disaster response – but to ensure the people affected receive the support, care, and financial assistance they need.

Kookaburra at Canoe Point

The Blue-Winged Kookaburra is a large species of kingfisher native to northern Australia and southern New Guinea.

Measuring around 40cm, it is slightly smaller than the more familiar Laughing Kookaburra.

They are known for their seemingly crazy cackling or barking calls! They are also quite colourful with the males having a blue tail while the female's tail is brown.

A very alert female is seen here in this shot taken at Canoe Point.

Gladstone Valley Funerals & Cremation Services

What do I say ...

As outsiders looking on we often feel useless and inadequate when someone we know has lost a loved one. We want to help, but the thought of saying or doing the wrong thing makes us hesitate. We feel unqualified, uncomfortable and awkward.

Such feelings are normal - BUT don't let them keep you away. If you REALLY care for your sorrowing friend or relative, you CAN help. You don't have to fix their grief or cheer them up, but you can share their load. Simply knowing you care, being there to listen and maybe even cry with your friend WILL help.

Girls learn cricket skills

By Matthew Pearce

Cricket-loving girls from around the region had a great time learning new skills on Tuesday, 11 January at the annual Brisbane Heat Summer Bash Program.

Speaking at the Rockhampton Cricket Ground, Central Queensland cricket manager Nathan Spencer said the girls aged from five to 14 took part in a variety of activities.

"Today is basically about all the girls across Rockhampton coming in and experiencing what crickets like in comfortable setting for them to enjoy, and they're certainly having a very good time," he said.

"We started off the day with a bunch of skills activities, focusing on some catching, some teamwork and running around skills, then we got stuck into some inflatable nets and a slip and slide. The day will end with a Colour Fun Run."

Spencer said 36 girls attended the event, up from 32 last year, showing the growth in interest in women's cricket in the region.

"To have grown in numbers by four is awesome and at the same time we've also incorporated our new That's My Game ambassador program.

"Ten girls from across the region act as role models for our girls, and we have six here today helping out - they're the idols for the girls based here in CQ.

"In terms of the ratio of males and females playing cricket in Central Queensland, we have almost 33 per cent girls playing now, which is awesome from where we were just four years ago."

Some rain on the day posed no problem for the girls, especially the slip and slide on hand.

Regional Fishing

Fishing: Good start to 2022

By Shane Anderson

Another year is done and dusted, so Happy New Year to you all and may your beer be cold and your rods be bent!

BUNDABERG OFFSHORE

We've had good reports of red emperor, coral trout, grass sweet lip and parrot being landed. Light winds are predicted for the coming weekend. As always, check your current weather report before heading out.

BUNDABERG INSHORE

The inshore reefs in the local area such as the Cochrane Artificial, the 2 Mile and the 4 Mile have all been fishing well. We have had good reports of snapper, and large size grunter being caught as well. Also, in these areas pelagics such as queenfish, trevally and spanish mackerel have been caught too.

BURNETT RIVER

With the bigger tides from the previous week pushing the cleaner water through the system, the Burnett River is starting to pick up. Reports of good sized bream, flathead and grunter are being a regular catch. Before heading out for a fish, put the crab pots in. Nice sized bucks have definitely been on the move.

KOLAN AND BAFFLE CREEK

With both these systems starting to clean up after previous rains, reports of whiting, flathead, grunter and mangrove jack have all been caught. Also, as a great sport fish the queenies have been showing up at the mouth of the Baffle. Both these systems have been crabbing well also, so put the pots in before heading out for a fish.

LAKE MONDURAN

Monduran is a lake that can change from week to week, from a change in wind direction, water level and water temperature. From a combination of both rain and a south-easterly wind can drop water temperatures, making fishing tough. As water levels have risen over the previous month, weed that's in the shallow starts to rot and takes the oxygen out of the water in that area. Areas that fished well previous to rain may not be as productive in the coming weeks. Starting over and finding new ground where fish can be holding can be crucial to catch rates in the future. Follow the wind and find that water temperature that's a degree or two above anywhere else. Fishing off points or backs of bays may give you the edge.

Fishing with Allstars Insalt's Joe McGuire

The best catches of 2021

These anglers have fished against the best across Queensland.

In our first year of operating the online fishing competition format, we had a lot of support from Hervey Bay North, and that can be seen each month with weigh-ins from multiple competitors as far north as Thursday Island, Karumba, Weipa, Cooktown.

This is why I set up the competition in the first place...the southern corner of our state has a sponsored fishing competition every second weekend giving away overseas made tackle, and the online fishing competition I previously entered from cockroach country gave away prizes that I didn't need or want.

So instead of complaining, I thought I'd give my own comp a crack by setting up ALLSTARS during a pandemic and via an internet based format that allows people to fish anytime and weigh-in 24/7 via the website www.allstarsinsalt.com.au.

I also wanted to create it as a family-owned business, with no foreign involvement so that we could give away cash prizes to the entrants to use how they wish.

Basically, the entrant's membership fee funds their fishing competition cash prizes, so fishos are building their own online fishing competition themselves.

It is that simple.

So here are the 17 anglers that caught the longest fish in each of the 18 species.

Acknowledgement goes to Phil Myers who is the only entrant to have won two species as he caught the longest Barramundi and Queenfish during the 2021 competition.

Just out of interest, across the 18 categories, nine of the longest fish were caught from the closest Port of Gladstone and five of the longest fish were caught during the month of June.

So, if you're planning a Queensland holiday then get to Central Queensland in June to go fishing and increase your odds of actually catching a fish!

The ALLSTARS online fishing competition is running for 2022 and registrations are open to anyone to try their luck, so get in early to win your share of the cash prizes.

Have you got what it takes to beat any of these ALLSTARS anglers?

ALLSTARS has months of competition still to occur and stories to share.

I have decades of fishing tips and will interview many successful commercial and recreational anglers to share their suggestions too.

As much as I like to write about fishing, I'd also like to hear from you.

So please email me at info@allstarsinsalt.com.au to share your fishing trips, tips, stories and photos.

The BITS Saints will have to make their mark early this year after leaving it too late in 2021.

Saints want swift start

By Liam Emerton

If there's one team that wants to get back to its previous success in 2022 it's the Boyne Island Tannum Sands Saints.

The BITS squad finished in the grand final in 2020 but failed to do so in 2021, being knocked out in the semi finals.

After being by far the second best team in the AFL Capricornia competition in 2020 a slow start in 2021 hurt the Saints, but that's something they refuse to repeat.

But adding to the season ahead, the Gladstone Suns have done some very strong recruiting which could lead to a very competitive local derby down the line.

For BITS Saints head coach Rick Bean he believes the comp is going to be fantastic this year with his side ready for a huge year.

"I'm looking forward to the season ahead, I think it's going to be an exciting year," he said.

"All clubs are out there trying to improve. Especially our neighbours which has added the excitement around the area for AFL and that can only be a good thing.

"We had 14 under 17s make their debut last year which will only put us in good stead moving forward.

"It's exciting times for the young kids. We've got players returning from unavailability and injuries so they're all coming back."

Speaking on their slow start Bean said it was crucial to start the season with strong performances to really set the BITS up for a big season.

"Any win is important. We're in a three-round competition so it's not a sprint, it is a marathon," he said.

"But to get some wins early on takes the pressure off and reinforces what we're trying to do.

"Last year we had a really hard year. We probably finished where we deserved to last year, that was third.

"We were hit with a lot of injuries and unavailability at the beginning of the year but the character of the club and the players actually shone through in the end."

Looking towards the Saints' squad, Bean looked towards a couple of experienced players before recognising those who could have a breakout year in the Capricornia competition this season.

"I'm very excited with a couple of really good players," he said.

"One that I would urge people to look out for is Ryan Shanks.

"He's a young player who has come through the ranks and he's on the verge of taking it to the next level.

"Another one is Tyler Walker. He came across from rugby league a couple of seasons ago and he's really established himself as a quality player.

"The other player, who I didn't see a lot of during his first few years because of injuries, but he looks fit and keen, that's Trent Miller who I think could be a bit of a story this year as well."

Of course the team couldn't be put together without sponsorships with Bean thanking those who have supported the club through the years and have come on board this year to sponsor the BITS AFL club.
